Came to Speak Jennifer Petersen constructs a genealogy of how legal conceptions of speech have transformed over the last century in response to new media technologies Drawing on media and legal history Petersen shows that the legal category of speech has varied considerably evolving from a narrow category of oratory and print publication to a broad abstract conception encompassing expressive nonverbal actions algorithms and data She examines a series of pivotal US court cases in which new media technologies such as phonographs radio film and computer code were integral to this shift In judicial decisions ranging from the determination that silent films were not a form of speech to the expansion of speech rights to include algorithmic outputs courts understood speech as mediated through technology Speech thus became disarticulated from individual speakers By outlining how legal definitions of speech are indelibly dependent on technology Petersen demonstrates that future innovations such as artificial intelligence will continue to restructure speech law in ways that threaten to protect corporate and institutional forms of speech over the rights and interests of citizens Monthly Journal of Insurance Economics, 1917 The Australian Jewish Herald, 1926 Economic World, 1918 Market World and Chronicle, 1917 The Morning Star and Free Baptist, 1900 Market World and Chronicle Arthur Richmond Marsh, 1918 Iron and Machinery World, 1897 Manufacturers' Record, 1905
