Rugg,Anwen Jones,1999 How easy or difficult is it for young people to get a job and to find a home in the countryside Debates surrounding youth policy tend to focus on young people in urban areas despite a high proportion of young people living in the countryside Furthermore problems that are often thought of as specifically urban such as housing need unemployment and social alienation are also experienced by rural youth This report examines the experience of young people getting a job and finding a home in rural districts Only a very small number of the 60 young people interviewed actually found a sustainable independent place for themselves in rural communities Getting a job finding a home looks at the housing and employment circumstances of the young people interviewed discusses how the young people judged their experience of living in the countryside focuses on the experience of single young people balancing housing employment and transport options considers problems associated with making transitions to adulthood in the countryside The authors conclude with a number of policy implications including issues relating to rurality family support employment housing transport and household formation Helping young people to make a successful transition to independence in rural areas requires an holistic policy response that considers housing employment and transport as a joint issue Take on the Future Canada.
