Notebook LM is an experimental product designed to use the power and promise of language models paired with your existing content to gain critical insights, faster. Think of it as a virtual research assistant that can summarize facts, explain complex ideas, and brainstorm new connections — all based on the sources you select.
A key difference between NotebookLM and traditional AI chatbots is that NotebookLM lets you "ground" the language model in your notes and sources. Source grounding effectively creates a personalized AI that's versed in the information relevant to you. Starting today, you can ground NotebookLM in specific Google Docs that you choose, and we'll be adding additional formats soon.
Once you've selected your Google Docs, you can do three things:
Get a summary. When you first add a Google Doc into NotebookLM, it will automatically generate a summary, along with key topics and questions to ask so you get a better understanding of the material.
Ask questions. When you're ready for a deeper dive, you can ask questions about the documents you've uploaded. For example:
A medical student could upload a scientific article about neuroscience and tell NotebookLM to "create a glossary of key terms related to dopamine"
An author working on a biography could upload research notes and ask a question like "Summarize all the times Houdini and Conan Doyle interacted."
Generate ideas. NotebookLM isn't just for Q&A. We've found some of its more delightful and useful capabilities are when it's able to help people come up with creative new ideas. For example:
A content creator could upload their ideas for new videos and ask "Generate a script for a short video on this topic."
Or an entrepreneur raising money could upload their pitch and ask "What questions would potential investors ask?"

AI speech synthesis is getting so good that its hard to tell what is real and what isn't. It is wild, weird, cool, scary. But is it really useful?
This new generator created by Google and rolled out in the experimental Notebook LM app can make a very realistic sounding podcast that is actually interesting to listen to, due to the fact

Summary
NotebookLM is an experimental AI-powered note-taking tool that helps users understand and synthesize information from various sources. The software analyzes uploaded documents and provides summaries, answers questions, and generates creative ideas based on the content. NotebookLM's latest feature, "Audio Overview," transforms documents into audio discussions, offering an alternative to traditional text-based summaries, and is particularly helpful for users who learn best by listening. While still in development, NotebookLM's source-grounding feature helps to minimize inaccuracies and ensure responses are relevant to the uploaded materials. Google is committed to developing this technology responsibly, gathering feedback from users and implementing safeguards as NotebookLM evolves.
