The Smartphone Video Toolkit Howard Hale, 2014-06-25 The 2014 Smartphone Video Toolkit 5 Steps to Creating High Quality Videos Quickly By Howard Hale If you are new to video or filmmaking and you want to learn the basics quickly and affordably then this book is for you This book was originally designed for small business owners but works great for mobile journalists educators

beginner filmmakers or even family members who want to do a better job of capturing special moments This book teaches you the fastest way to make high quality videos and learn the process of shooting editing and uploading videos to YouTube by using a smartphone iPad or mobile device Life is short hit record Considering Video for your business non profit family or just for fun Video can be the most compelling part of your website In seconds a visitor can make the decision to use or not use your service to buy or not buy your product An engaging video can make all the difference in that decision and the same can be said for website or social assets Creating and uploading videos is easier than ever before and videos have become an integral part of all businesses marketing their products or services online Most business owners don t wake up in the morning and think hey I want to learn how to shoot edit and publish videos to YouTube If you re like me you re thinking about how you can get more business fulfill the business you have and keep your customers clients or patients happy Businesses that leverage video can create a competitive advantage capture a larger share of your targeted customers clients or patients Even today most websites and videos are informative at best and don t ask the viewer to take a specific action or what s commonly know as a call to action statement It s not hard to create videos today but it s a process and it does require some thought to create a video that s not only engaging to watch but also makes a connection or impact with the person watching it For most business owners it s not likely that you ll want to create videos with fluffy kittens that go viral And while those types of videos do go viral you would be hard pressed to create a connection with your audience My goal and objective is the same for web development as it is for video creation Connect and engage with your target audience and create a compelling story that incites them to engage with you your brand and your product or service Can you really create quality videos in just an hour or two Until now hiring a video production firm has been quite expensive takes a lot of time and most videos have a shelf life of 6 to 18 months In the past creating videos has been out of reach of most businesses even those businesses that have annual sales of 10 million have been hard pressed to come up with the right resources to create a quality product I m not talking about just writing a check I m talking about human capital as well Creating a quality video is just as much about telling your company story as it is about the technical aspects of creating a video Having someone inside your company that understands your target audience and can speak to them on their terms is just as critical No matter how great or small your marketing budget may be I highly recommend that everyone interested in creating videos start by using a smartphone or some kind of mobile device My book the SmartPhone Video Toolkit will guide you step by step through the process of creating great videos using your smartphone or iPad
