

Chinese Rural Development

Albert Nyberg, Scott Rozelle

Chinese Rural Development:

Rural Development in China Dwight Heald Perkins, Shahid Yusuf, 1984 Author is an alumnus of Evanston Township High School class of 1952 China's Rural Development Miracle John William Longworth, 1989 China's Rural Development Road Xiaoshan Zhang, Zhou Li, 2017-10-27 This book systematically reviews the experiences and problems encountered in the development of China's rural areas over the past three decades since the start of the country's economic reform. As such, it addresses the most important aspects in terms of China's rural communities, farmers, and agriculture from the perspective of development, such as the agricultural management system, rural land tenure system, rural fiscal and taxation system, financial system, science and technology system, rural governance structure, poverty alleviation, environmental protection, etc. The approach employed combines essential theories, laws, and policy strategies with rural development practice in order to analyze the success stories and lingering problems, to explore the causes of both, and to offer an outlook on the future of rural development. Chinese Rural Development: The Great Transformation William L. Parish, 2016-07-08

This text examines the Pacific War, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War from the perspective of those who fought the wars and lived through them. The relationship between history and memory informs the book, and each war is relocated in the historical and cultural experiences of Asian countries. China's Rural Areas China Development Research Foundation, 2017-04-21 The prosperity of China's people has advanced very much in recent decades. However, in many respects, China is still a developing country, and this is especially true of rural areas where economic progress has not been as marked as in urban areas, and where many people still live in relative poverty. The Chinese government recognizes that more hard work is needed in order to improve prosperity in the countryside. This book provides a systematic and comprehensive analysis of the situation in China's rural areas, assesses the effectiveness or otherwise of current policies, and puts forward proposals for further development. Subjects covered include the changing population profile of rural areas, land ownership, agricultural improvements, and local self-government. Rural Development in China Xiaotong Fei, 1989-06-13

This collection of essays, written from 1947-1986 by Fei Hsiao-tung, China's most distinguished sociologist and anthropologist, presents a rich and representative sampling of the research that has characterized his long career. In 1936, Fei conducted field work in Kaixian, a village in Jiangsu province in east China. This village became the subject of his now classic study, Peasant Life in China, in which he argued that because of China's huge population and the scarcity of cultivable land, household industries such as the production of raw silk were vital to the peasants' economic survival. His conclusions, long rejected by China's policymakers, have recently been embraced by the government under the political leadership of Deng Xiaoping. Returning to Kaixian in 1957 and again in the 1980s, Fei examined the changes that had occurred since his initial research. Three essays that resulted from these follow-up studies are included in this collection, providing a rare summary and analysis of developments in the village between 1936 and 1986. Also included here are four articles based on Fei's 1983-84 research in other areas of Jiangsu province. His explorations of the contrast between the wealth of southern Jiangsu and the long-standing poverty of the northern half of the province address key issues of public policy in China today. Useful to students of rural sociology as well as of Chinese history, politics, economics, and anthropology, this collection will provide an overview not only of developments in the small towns of China but also of Fei's thought.

The Internet and Rural Development in China Jinqiu Zhao, 2008. Despite its low penetration in China's vast rural areas, the Internet is generally perceived as a new engine for rural empowerment. By examining five Internet application initiatives in rural China, this book offers a unique view of the diffusion and usage of the Internet and its implications on the lives of rural people. Placed in the political, socioeconomic, and infrastructure contexts of rural China, the book departs from the classical diffusion of innovations model and extends the existing knowledge on the adoption and usage of the Internet by rural people. In addition to testing the applicability of the diffusion of innovations theory to the diffusion of Information and Communications Technologies in the rural areas today, the study provides rich empirical evidence regarding the actual impact of the Internet on the livelihood of rural people. It also shows some innovative uses of the Internet in rural development.

Rural Development Sartaj Aziz, 1978. China's Rural Development Policy Minzi Su, 2009. As China strives to achieve nothing less than a harmonious society despite the pronounced and institutionalized class structure that divides rural Chinese from urban, eastern from western, and rich from poor, a key element of that effort is a new socialist countryside. The author assesses the prospects for China's rural revitalization programs now in their initial stages. The author draws on her extensive front-line field research to discover precisely why Beijing's rural development policies, though helping many, have thus far bypassed hundreds of millions of farm households. Not least, she also identifies the capacities and political-economic conditions that hold the greatest promise for successful policy implementation. This book assesses the prospects for the rural revitalization programs that are a key element of China's quest for a harmonious society.

Cooperative and Collective in China's Rural Development: Between State and Private Interests Eduard B. Vermeer, Frank N. Pieke, Woei Lien Chong, 2024-12-06

Following China's successful decollectivization, diverse new organizational forms arose in response to different local situations. The contributors dissect the relationships among the emerging class of entrepreneurs, local officials, and their family members and associates.

Women and Rural Development in China Elisabeth Croll, 1985. How far will the current reforms in the Chinese countryside improve the position of peasant women? In this timely analysis, Elisabeth Croll examines China's new rural policies which have boosted agricultural production and radically altered its organization. The inclusion in one book of an up-to-date analysis of rural developments in China and a detailed examination of the effects of rural development policies on women's production and reproduction between 1949 and 1978 provides the reader with a unique opportunity to study the implications of the collectivization and decollectivization of agriculture.

Accelerating China's Rural Transformation Albert Nyberg, Scott Rozelle, 1999-01-01. QUOTE: two issues remain central to the Chinese government's rural development objectives food security and poverty alleviation China has made remarkable progress in meeting these goals the economy including the rural sector has grown at phenomenal rates during the reform period QUOTEWhile China's rural products input labor and land markets are improving they remain nascent China still needs to foster several critical institutions such as an effective fiscal system a more efficient rural financial system a workable land tenure arrangement and a revamped trade and investment environment for agriculture The primary purpose of this report is to identify and consolidate information on these crucial issues that impact on rural development in China This report assesses strategic options from the perspective of efficiency equitable development and growth It is intended to assist government officials and World Bank staff to prioritize policy and institutional reforms and public investment decisions in the rural sector
