Choosing Leaders and Choosing to Lead Dr Douglas Board,2012-10-01 Some of the worst selection practices to be found anywhere can be found at the top of organisations Even when senior selection is not egregiously bad rarely is it as good as it could be Front line staff and middle managers are selected with much more rigour today than 30 years ago but not the chairmen chief executives and chief officers who lead them So says Douglas Board in Choosing Leaders and Choosing to Lead Dr Board draws on his extensive experience in executive search and in leadership coupled with his own academic research embracing the sociology and psychology of scholars such as Pierre Bourdieu and Karl Weick to offer ground breaking insight into the value and limitations of established selection practice This book illuminates ways in which senior roles differ from other positions and will help those charged with selecting individuals for senior positions as well as potential candidates those concerned with regulating selection policy and researchers Examining the classic mix of competency frameworks and selection tools such as psychological and skills assessments simulations reference checking and interviews the author concludes that senior selection choices are holding back organisations and individual careers with implications for diversity effectiveness and social justice He contends that while complacent self regarding elites will always need vigilant challenge the scientific approach to selection has weaknesses as well as strengths Those weaknesses become more pronounced at senior levels posing particular questions about amongst other things the role of intuition and politics
