Choosing Whos To Live Ethics And Aging:

Choosing Who's to Live James William Walters, 1996 The population is rapidly aging while access to proper and affordable medical treatment is becoming more and more limited This impasse challenges us to make ethical decisions regarding the rationing of health care Arguing that de facto rationing is already taking place due to economic necessity and that proper management of this rationing is essential to the fair and ethical treatment of all seeking care Choosing Who's to Live directly addresses one of the most challenging moral questions of our day Appearing in the wake of increasing awareness of health care reform this volume identifies four compelling arguments for managed health care rationing the number of citizens over age eighty five will increase 500 percent by the year 2040 current baby boomers could live longer than today's elderly by seven to fifteen years new medical technologies are appearing every day and the ratio of workers to retirees will be 1 4 in forty years instead of the current 1 2 5 In this volume six leading scholars take the discussion of rationing health care beyond the simple idea of withholding government funded life saving treatment from the very old to a more ethical effective treatment plan for all Stakeholders and Ethics in Healthcare Lisa A. Martinelli, 2022-03-20 This ground breaking book uses organizational ethics and stakeholder theory to explore the ethical accountability of leadership in healthcare organizations to their distinct vulnerable stakeholder communities The book begins with a discussion of the moral agency of healthcare organizations and introduces stakeholder theory It then looks at key ethical challenges in relation to the confidentiality and privacy of healthcare data before turning to child health and interventions around issues such as obesity maltreatment and parenting The book ends by focusing on ethics of care in relation to older people and people with disabilities An insightful contribution to thinking about ethics for contemporary healthcare management and leadership this interdisciplinary book is of interest to readers with a background in healthcare business and management law bioethics and theology What is a Person? James William Walters, 1997 By providing a much needed religious philosophical context for the discussion examining contemporary thinking on just what constitutes valuable life Walters broadens his inquiry beyond the human to include other animals and also deals with the phenomenon of anencephalic infants those who are born without higher brains The Routledge Handbook of Critical Social Work Stephen Webb, 2019-01-03 The Routledge Handbook of Critical Social Work brings together the world's leading scholars in the field to provide a cutting edge overview of classic and current research and future trends in the subject Comprised of 48 chapters divided into six parts Historical social and political influences Mapping the theoretical and conceptual terrain Methods of engagement and modes of analysis Critical contexts for practice and policy Professional education and socialisation Future challenges directions and transformations it provides an authoritative guide to theory and method and the primary debates of today in social work from a critical perspective This handbook is a major reference work and the first book to comprehensively map the wide ranging territory of critical social work It does so by addressing its conceptual developments its methodological advances its value based front

Medical Benefit and the Human Lottery Duff R. Waring, 2008-01-18 Bioethicists moral philosophers and social policy analysts have long debated about how we should decide who shall be saved with scarce lifesaving resources when not all can be saved It is often claimed that it is fairer to save younger persons and that age is an ethically relevant consideration in such tragic decisions Medical benefit should be maximized and final selection should aim to minimize the contaminating influence of chance These claims are challenged by Duff R Waring in Medical Benefit and the Human Lottery one of the few books that attempts a sustained defence of random patient selection This book combines ethics and political philosophy in its novel and strict egalitarian approach to patient selection for transplantable organs Waring addresses the question of whether we should choose between lives on the basis of fair chances or best outcomes He argues that final selection criteria should be based on fair chances that equalize opportunity as opposed to best outcomes His defence of hardy egalitarianism aims to show that random selection by lottery can affirm both a common humanity and the equal value of lives The notion of patient selection by lottery has not fared well in bioethics and has been regarded by some as a moral affront Waring argues that a human selection lottery may be neither as crude nor as ethically anomalous as some have supposed Indeed it can reflect a familiar conception of equality as a political and moral ideal This conception abstracts from many undeniable differences between patients and claims that scarce resources should be allocated on the principled assumption that each of their lives is equally worth saving The book is also notable for its critiques of some recent utilitarian notions of medical benefit which can have an age biased impact on elderly patients Waring then argues against the leading contemporary age based approaches to patient selection He explores the way random selection by lottery can affirm his egalitarian ethos in cases where eligible transplant candidates have each passed a threshold level of prospective medical benefit that has been set by democratic deliberation Taming chance with a human lottery is defended as the most lucid means of ensuring equal opportunity In so doing Waring argues that we give the principle of equal concern and respect a radical expression above a noncomparative threshold of medical benefit each candidate can have an equal claim to life

Care of the Aged James M. Humber, Robert F. Almeder, 2002-12-03 The growing population of elderly and infirm has given rise to serious questions about their proper care and treatment What responsibility does society have to its aging citizens What duties if any do grown children owe their parents What should be done with severely demented patients When is a person elderly Among the issues discussed in Care of the Aged are disrespecting our elders ethical dilemmas in community based care duties to aging parents a feminist ethics of care and the ethic of pain management in older people

Medical Sociology on the Move William C. Cockerham, 2013-04-03 This book provides readers with a single source reviewing and updating sociological theory in medical or health sociology The book not only addresses the major theoretical approaches in the field today it also identifies the future directions these theories are likely to take in explaining the social processes affecting health and disease Many of the chapters are written by leading medical sociologists who feature the use of theory in their everyday work including contributions from the original theorists of fundamental causes health lifestyles and medicalization Theories focusing on both agency and structure are included to provide a comprehensive account of this important area in medical sociology Medical Humanities Review, 1997 The Yale Journal of International Law, 2008
