Figure 1 illustrates the research design. The study was conducted in two phases. In the first phase, the researchers conducted a series of focus group discussions with a sample of 10 young people (5 males and 5 females) aged 18–25 years. The purpose of these discussions was to explore the young people's perceptions of the various factors that might influence their decision to use a condom. The researchers then conducted a series of individual interviews with a sample of 20 young people (10 males and 10 females) aged 18–25 years. The purpose of these interviews was to explore the young people's perceptions of the various factors that might influence their decision to use a condom. Chrezvychainyi I Polnomochnyi

Clifford M. Foust

Chrezvychnyyi I Polnomochnyyi:

Vladimir Putin and the New World Order J. L. Black, 2003-12-31 J L Black's latest work is a rich and carefully crafted attempt to expose the textures of Russia's perceptions of itself and its place in the world. Based almost entirely on Russian sources, J L Black found himself returning to the old practice of citing and decoding feature items from the Russian press. The difference between then and now, of course, is that at that time there was the struggle to read between the lines while now he reads and tries to digest the lines themselves. The Russian press still provides a very good indication of prevailing moods within the political and military elite establishments of Moscow. It is also still evident that if we are to understand Russian foreign policy making, we must attempt to view international situations through the prism of Russian analysts and officials. Only then can we draw conclusions based on both our and their perceptions of current events and visions for the future. Vladimir Putin and the New World Order is divided into two parts. The first is a chronologically organized story of Putin's efforts to find a niche for Russia in the world since his sudden appointment as acting president at the end of December 1999. Throughout, Black places great emphasis on the sequence of events to illustrate important patterns, for example, Putin's tendency to make dramatic overtures to the East as preparation for negotiations with the West. The book's second part focuses on Russia's attention to specific regions of the world and types of international activity. These include individual countries such as China and Ukraine, regions like Central Asia and the Caucasus, integrative agencies including the CIS, concepts and practices among them, matters of security and military reform, and the ambivalent Russian associations with so-called rogue states.

Reds in Blue Louis Howard Porter, 2023 Reds in Blue investigates Soviet relations with UNESCO in the mid-twentieth century to offer a new way of thinking about the role of the United Nations in the Soviet experience of the Cold War. Applying social, cultural, and intellectual historical methodologies to the study of multilateral diplomacy, it provides the first history of the Soviet reception of the idea of world governance through noncommunist international organizations.

Canada in the Soviet Mirror J.L. Black, 1998-04-15 This is an original, thoroughly researched account of the image of Canada in Soviet writings, political, journalistic, and academic, over the entire course of Soviet history. A study of the role of ideology in Soviet foreign affairs, the book traces the influence of an adjusting Marxist-Leninist lens on policy formulated by the Kremlin and also explicitly on a public discourse rigidly controlled by government. This public image has been collated with private opinion documented in recently opened Russian archives. Canada clearly served a larger purpose in Soviet foreign policy than was previously assumed. Uniquely, Canadian issues and participants helped shape Soviet policy, sometimes in very strange ways. Both story and reference text, Canada in the Soviet Mirror will interest readers in Soviet and Canadian studies, journalism, and popular culture.
