Chinese Dialect Classification Current Issues In Linguistic Theory 188:

Chinese Dialect Classification Richard VanNess Simmons, 1999-11-15 This volume is an investigation and classification of dialects along the Wu and Jiang Hwai Mandarin border in China's eastern Yangtze Valley. It is the first monograph length study to critically question the traditional single criterion of initial voicing for the classification of Wu dialects and propose a comprehensive comparative framework as a more successful alternative. Arguing that dialect affiliation is best determined through analysis of dialect correspondence to common phonological systems, the author develops a taxonomic analysis that definitively distinguishes Common Northern Wu and Mandarin dialects. By clarifying dialect affiliation in the Wu and Mandarin border region, this volume makes significant contributions to our understanding of the true nature of the region's dialects and their history. Using primarily data drawn from the author's own fieldwork, the volume contains copious comparative examples and an extensive lexicon of the Old Jintarn dialect.

Bibliographie Linguistique de L'annee 1999 Mark Janse, Hella Olbertz, Sijmen Tol, 2003-11-30 Setting out the historical national and religious characteristics of the Italians as they impact on the integration within the European Union, this study makes note of the two characteristics that have an adverse effect on Italian national identity: cleavages between north and south and the dominant role of family. It discusses how for Italians family loyalty is stronger than any other allegiance, including feelings towards their country, their nation or the EU. Due to such subnational allegiances and values, this book notes that Italian civic society is weaker and engagement at the grass roots is less robust than one finds in other democracies, leaving politics in Italy largely in the hands of political parties. The work concludes by noting that EU membership, however, provides no magic bullet for Italy; it cannot change internal cleavages, the Italian worldview and family values, or the country's mafia-dominated power matrix, and as a result, the underlying absence of fidelity to a shared polity, Italian or European, leaves the country as ungovernable as ever.

J. Cadora, 1992 This study introduces the notion of ecolinguistics to identify the linguistic correlates of ecological bedouin village and urban developments in the Arab world and describes the ecolinguistic rules which speakers generate and apply as they gradually acquire an awareness of the social parameters for their use to produce new lexical items Bedouin, Village and Urban Arabic F. J. Cadora, 2017-07-03 As a culture area the Arab world has had different ecological structures nomadic bedouin and sedentary rural and urban with parallel linguistic systems Throughout the long history of the Arabic language the development of transitional stages has generated linguistic correlates in Arabic dialects The notion ecolinguistics combined and reinforced with the concepts of compatibility and lexical diffusion is introduced in this study to identify such a sociolinguistic change The domain of change for this ecolinguistic variation is the extended family in which the middle generation develops new lexical items by the application of ecolinguistic rules This research also provides a description of these rules which speakers generate as they gradually acquire an awareness of the social parameters for their use The theoretical framework and the putative results of this study are offered to stimulate further research in the causation and implementation of linguistic change especially in terms of quantitative analyses of ecolinguistic variation and lexical diffusion in the Arabic language Historiographia linguistica, 2000 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2001 Papers from the ...
