Weaving Relationships Kathryn Anderson, 2006-01-01 Weaving Relationships tells the remarkable little known story of a movement that transcends barriers of geography language culture and economic disparity The story begins in the early 1980s when 200 000 Maya men women and children crossed the Guatemalan border into Mexico fleeing genocide by the Guatemalan army and seeking refuge A decade later many of the refugees returned to their homeland along with 140 Canadians members of Project Accompaniment The Canadians were there by their side to provide companionship and more significantly as an act of solidarity Weaving Relationships describes the historical roots of this solidarity focusing on the Maya in Guatemala It relates the story of Project Accompaniment and two of its founders in Canada the Christian Task Force on Central America and the Maritimes Guatemala Breaking the Silence Network It reveals solidarity s impact on the Canadians and Guatemalans whose lives have been changed by the experience of relationships across borders It presents solidarity not as a work of charity apart from or for them but as a bond of mutuality of friendship and common struggle with those who are marginalized excluded and impoverished in this world This book speaks of a spirituality based on community and justice and challenges the church to move beyond its preoccupation with its own survival to solidarity with those who are suffering It is a book about hope in the face of death and despair

Women in God's Army Andrew Mark Eason,2009-10-22 The early Salvation Army professed its commitment to sexual equality in ministry and leadership In fact its founding constitution proclaimed women had the right to preach and hold any office in the organization But did they Women in God s Army is the first study of its kind devoted to the critical analysis of this central claim It traces the extent to which this egalitarian ideal was realized in the private and public lives of first and second generation female Salvationists in Britain and argues that the Salvation Army was found wanting in its overall commitment to women s equality with men Bold pronouncements were not matched by actual practice in the home or in public ministry Andrew Mark Eason traces the nature of these discrepancies as well as the Victorian and evangelical factors that lay behind them He demonstrates how Salvationists often assigned roles and responsibilities on the basis of gender rather than equality and the ways in which these discriminatory practices were supported by a male defined theology and authority He views this story from a number of angles including historical gender and feminist theology ensuring it will be of interest to a wide spectrum of readers Salvationists themselves will appreciate the light it sheds on recent debates Ultimately however anyone who wants to learn more about the human struggle for equality will find this book enlightening

Booth,2010 Throughout the second half of the twentieth century until his death in 2005 Wayne Booth was one of the most influential literary critics in America and beyond known worldwide for The Rhetoric of Fiction 1961 and hailed as a progressive advocate for rethinking the concept of liberal education in a changing world His many books and essays remain classic reading for those who wish to understand how fiction communicates ethically why good ethical criticism as such is a signature human activity to be cherished and how the human desire to know helps to define who we are collectively and individually In this final volume of Booth s selected essays appropriately titled The Knowing Most Worth Doing after Booth s earlier edited collection The Knowledge Most Worth Having 1967 Walter Jost in collaboration with the author has gathered an indispensable collection of his former teacher s thinking across a wide variety of fields and disciplines from ethics to religion and from rhetorical criticism to the philosophical plurality of possible critical modes The selections begin with three diverse profound discussions of the need for plural perspectives in the contemporary world proceed to accessible yet learned readings of the ethics of literature and end with wonderful speculations on the nature of and human need for religious thought Gathered from various journals and books over several decades these fugitive essays will prove their enduring value because they speak frankly and without pretensions to problems that continue to plague us and to aspirations that continue to draw a new generation into the knowing most worth doing In these discussions knowledge is understood as an activity and a way of life one that can be embraced by all people in many different ways
