way ethnically diverse societies produced knowledge in colonial settings Mapmaking proposes Hidalgo formed part of an epistemological shift tied to the negotiation of land and natural resources between the region's Spanish Indian and mixed race communities The craft of making maps drew from social memory indigenous and European conceptions of space and ritual and Spanish legal practices designed to adjust spatial boundaries in the New World Indigenous mapmaking brought together a distinct coalition of social actors Indian leaders native towns notaries surveyors judges artisans merchants muleteers collectors and painters who participated in the critical observation of the region's geographic features Demand for maps reconfigured technologies associated with the making of colorants adhesives and paper that drew from Indian botany and experimentation trans Atlantic commerce and Iberian notarial culture The maps in this study reflect a regional perspective associated with Oaxaca's decentralized organization its strategic position amidst a network of important trade routes that linked central Mexico to Central America and the ruggedness and diversity of its physical landscape
