Living with Animals brings a pragmatist ecofeminist perspective to discussions around animal rights animal welfare and animal ethics to move the conversation beyond simple use or non use decisions Erin McKenna uses a case study approach with select species to question how humans should live and interact with various animal beings through specific instances of such relationships Addressing standard topics such as the use of animals for food use for biomedical research use in entertainment use as companions use as captive specimens in zoos and use in hunting and ecotourism through a revolutionary pluralist and experimental approach McKenna provides an uncommonly nuanced accounts for complex relationships and changing circumstances Rather than seek absolute moral stands regarding human relationships with other animal beings and rather than trying to end such relationships altogether the books urges us to make existing relations better

Think or Be Eaten Angie Riedel, 2016-10-29 What a shame that someone out there some group of very strange people have such a strong driving need to destroy mankind to enslave it and humiliate it and teach us all to believe that we have no value and we don't matter and we can't think for ourselves The wars and genocides are all a part of some grotesque greater plan and separating the human being from himself is the beginning and end of hope for our species But we don't have to go along with anything that we know is evil or wrong or destructive We don't have to choose to be devalued and disrespected by anyone who claims to be more important than ourselves We already know that no legitimate being would tell us to be less than we are It's the overt demand that we stop existing That's slow death from the inside out On a vast scale when all of society gets down on its knees to mere men who say they must it is spiritual genocide We are free to stop doing it anytime
