Bringing the Neuroscience of Learning to Online Teaching Tracey Tokuhamma-Espinosa, 2021 This practical resource draws on the best of neuroscience to inform decision making about digital learning We live in unprecedented times that have pushed schools to make many decisions that have been postponed for years For the first time since the inception of public education teachers have been invited to redesign the learning landscape by integrating an intelligent selection of digital educational resources and changing pedagogical approaches based on information from the learning sciences This handbook will help teachers make the most of this opportunity by showing them how to use digital tools to differentiate learning employ alternative options to standardized testing personalize learning prioritize social emotional skills and inspire students to think more critically The author identifies some gems in quality teaching that are amplified in online contexts including 40 evidence informed pedagogies from the learning sciences This book will help all educators move online teaching and learning to new levels of confidence and success Book Features Provides quick references to key planning tools like decision trees graphics app recommendations and step by step directions to help teachers create their own online learning courses Guides teachers through a 12 step model for instructional design that meets both national and international standards Shows educators how to use an all new Digital Resource Taxonomy to select resources and how to research and keep them up to date Explains why good instructional design and educational technology are complementary with best practices in learning sciences like Mind Brain and Education Science Shares ways teachers can leverage technology to create more time for the personalized aspects of learning Shows educators how to design online courses with tools that let all students begin at their own starting points and how to differentiate homework Offers evidence informed pedagogies to make online intimate and authentic for students

Youth Activism in Environmental Politics, 2nd Edition Matt Henn, Sarah Pickard, 2023-02-02

Recently important new research has emerged to explain the large intergenerational cleavages in values and political preferences in many contemporary societies In most established democracies and many newer democracies young people are more likely to possess progressive values and are much more cosmopolitan in their outlook socially liberal accepting of cultural diversity and outward looking than older generations They tend to reject mainstream electoral politics and authoritarian nationalist forms of populism in favour of alternative progressive political parties and movements Indeed there is burgeoning evidence of a global tendency towards young people's support for and participation in new styles of non institutionalised political action that seem to better fit their life styles and to permit the actualisation of their political aspirations Although there is a considerable body of existing literature that examines the rise of such values and political participation preferences there is little work that focuses on the relationship with the prioritisation of environmental issues and environmental activism as evidenced in the September 2019 global climate strikes The goal of the current Research Topic is to explore the contemporary realities and patterns of youth participation in environmental politics in different societies As such we welcome manuscripts of original research and conceptualization that address the different practices of youth as they seek to effect environmental change and also their motivations for doing so Contributions are welcome from scholars youth practitioners and activists operating in a range of different settings and using diverse disciplinary and multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives Implementation mapping for selecting, adapting and developing implementation strategies Maria E.
