Control of macromolecular synthesis in Saccharomyces cerevisiae Carl Timothy Wehr, 1970 Synthesis of total RNA DNA and protein was followed in a haploid yeast auxotroph during starvation for required amino acids and uracil and during shift up and shift down conditions During amino acid starvation synthesis of macromolecular constituents was not immediately affected reflecting the presence of large intracellular amino acid pools Under conditions in which there was no net RNA and protein synthesis amino acid and uracil starvation total DNA continued to be synthesized for a total increase of 10-15% The results suggested that cells engaged in DNA synthesis at the introduction of starvation conditions complete replication of the genome but do not initiate new periods of DNA synthesis Upon return of a starved culture to complete medium a period of DNA synthesis was required before the culture began to divide at the rate characteristic for complete medium Compounds which are known to inhibit DNA synthesis in bacteria had no effect upon starved yeast cultures returned to complete medium Under shift down conditions cultures exhibited a lag in response to that observed during amino acid starvation During shift up conditions DNA and protein increased in a stepwise fashion before assuming a continuous rate of increase characteristic of the new medium During shift up RNA was synthesized initially at a high rate this was found not to be due to exclusive synthesis of a particular class of RNA Symposium on Cellular Control Mechanisms of

Macromolecular Synthesis Robert Goldwasser, 1963* Cytodifferentiation and Macromolecular Synthesis Michael Locke, 2012-12-02 Cytodifferentiation and Macromolecular Synthesis focuses on research on biosynthesis structure and morphology of cells The book first discusses cytodifferentiation and macromolecular synthesis and genetic control of protein structure The relationship of amino acid substitutions to the genetic code comparison of gene and protein alterations and suppressor mutations are described The text also looks at genetic repression allosteric inhibition and cellular differentiation epigenetic control of protein synthesis in cells quantitative studies of protein synthesis in embryonic tissues and chromosomes and cytodifferentiation The book also discusses the morphological and chemical differentiation of plastids The effect of light on plastid development structure of mature chloroplast morphological changes in the development of proplastid to the chloroplast and inheritable factors that control plastids are described The text also focuses on the collagen system mechanisms of elongation and tissue interaction and metabolic responses The book is a valuable reference for
