He is looking down at the woman with a serious expression. The woman, on the right, is also shirtless and has long, dark hair. She is looking up at the man with a slight smile. The background is dark, and the lighting is dramatic, highlighting the contours of their bodies.

Controlling Catherine:

Love on the Rocks Lori Rotskoff, 2003-10-15 In this fascinating history of alcohol in postwar American culture Lori Rotskoff draws on short stories advertisements medical writings and Hollywood films to investigate how gender norms and ideologies of marriage intersected with scientific and popular ideas about drinking and alcoholism After the repeal of Prohibition in 1933 recreational drinking became increasingly accepted among white suburban middle class men and women But excessive or habitual drinking plagued many families How did people view the problem drinkers in their midst How did husbands and wives learn to cope within an alcoholic marriage And how was drinking linked to broader social concerns during the Great Depression World War II and the Cold War era By the 1950s Rotskoff explains mental health experts movie producers and members of self help groups like Alcoholics Anonymous and Al Anon helped bring about a shift in the public perception of alcoholism from sin to sickness Yet alcoholism was also viewed as a family problem that expressed gender role failure for both women and men On the silver screen in movies such as The Lost Weekend and The Best Years of Our Lives and on the printed page in stories by such writers as John Cheever in hospitals and at Twelve Step meetings chronic drunkenness became one of the most pressing public health issues of the day Shedding new light on the history of gender marriage and family life from the 1920s through the 1960s this innovative book also opens new perspectives on the history of leisure and class affiliation attitudes toward consumerism and addiction and the development of a therapeutic culture

Controlling Public Education Kathryn A. McDermott, 1999 Most Americans believe that local school districts are the only means by which citizens may exercise control over public education Kathryn McDermott argues to the contrary that existing local institutions are no longer sufficient for achieving either equity or democratic governance Not only is local control inequitable it also fails to live up to its reputation for guaranteeing public participation and citizen influence Drawing upon democratic theory and the results of field research in New Haven Connecticut and three suburbs McDermott contends that our educational system can be made more democratic by centralizing control over funding while decentralizing most authority over schools to the level of schools themselves while enacting public school choice controlled for racial balance To many people in Connecticut and elsewhere the tension between equal opportunity for all students and local control of public education seems impossible to resolve In 1996 the Connecticut Supreme Court ruled in Sheff v O Neill that local control produces unconstitutional segregation of public schools Nearly all of the state s 169 towns operate their own public schools and like the towns they serve the schools are generally homogeneous with respect to race and socioeconomic class In the Sheff ruling the court declared that making school districts coterminous with town lines is the single most important factor contributing to the present concentration of racial and ethnic minorities in the Hartford public school system At the same time the court also acknowledged that the town based school system presently furthers the legitimate nonracial interests of permitting considerable local control and accountability in educational matters In Connecticut and elsewhere it has often seemed necessary to choose between local control and equity in public education and local control has almost always won McDermott argues that rather than seeing local control and equity as conflicting goals policymakers should regard them as equally important components of democracy in public education In her view a truly democratic system of education should both encourage citizen participation in school governance and contribute to the formation and maintenance of a social order in which equality of opportunity prevails over hierarchies of privilege Centralizing distribution of resources and using controlled choice to end racial isolation would provide greater equality of opportunity while decentralizing management of schools would expand citizen participation McDermott s conclusions break new ground in our understanding of local school governance itself and call into question the conventional wisdom about local participation These findings should interest those who study school governance and reform especially in an urban setting as well as policy makers administrators teachers students and citizens eager to improve their schools

Control of Drainage Morphology of Salt Marshes on St. Catherine's Island, Georgia Joe R. Wadsworth, 1981 A combination of photogrammetric topographic and field analyses showed that significant structural control by relict beach ridges is exerted on development of drainage morphology of salt marshes on St Catherine s Island Ga Structural control was indicated by bifurcation ratio juncture angle and most clearly in preferred orientation of channels which was strongest in second order channels Factors affecting structural control included stream order basin size and type of juncture The principle mechanism of control was lateral confinement of channels by ridge remnants eroded below the marsh surface extent of control appeared related to depth of channel incision below marsh surface The Banking Law Journal Edward White, 1906 A journal devoted to banking law and practice for bankers and bank attorneys Includes articles notes on court cases and summaries of legislation Verbal Behavior Burrhus Frederic Skinner, 1957 Everybody's Magazine , 1915 Railway Signaling and Communications , 1908 Lacy's Acting Edition of Plays, Dramas, Farces and Extravagances, Etc., Etc , 1871 Al-Anon Narratives Grazyna Zajdow, 2002-08-30 According to the author in Australia men drink alcohol as a mark of masculinity and women take care of drinking men as a part of normative femininity And while research on alcoholics and alcoholism is common very few studies consider the lives of the women who are married to alcoholics Here Zajdow details and explores the lives of such women who belong to Al Anon where they may share their experiences and offer their stories in a nonthreatening and supportive environment The author presents the narratives of these women in the context of her analysis of the self help group to demonstrate how people construct and reconstruct their lives as coherent stories about themselves and to show how these self stories can be changed and reconceptualized within the context of the group Unique in its examination of self stories offered within a self help group this book challenges sociological knowledge about the way these mutual aid groups operate as communities of interest and help Zajdow begins by laying the groundwork through a discussion of the professional and lay discourses on women s relationships to alcoholic men She then provides the basis for using self stories to examine a group of people the individuals in the group and the behavior of the group in general A history of Al Anon as a self help group is also detailed and the author compares the Australian meetings to meetings in other parts of the world The stories themselves are then examined and discussed in terms of how they relate to group processes and individual change through Al Anon Tracing the way that these women move from a place of despair to one of hope and meaningful change this also represents a sociological exploration of gender families and communities Annual Report Québec (Province).
