Converging Divergences Worldwide Changes In Employment Systems:

Converging Divergences Harry C. Katz, Owen Darbishire, 2018-08-06 Exploring recent changes in employment practices in seven industrialized countries Australia Britain Germany Italy Japan Sweden and the United States and in two essential industries automobile and telecommunications Harry C Katz and Owen Darbishire find that traditional national systems of employment are being challenged by four cross national patterns The patterns which are becoming ever more prevalent can be categorized as low wage human resource management Japanese oriented and joint team based strategies The authors go on to show that these changing employment patterns are closely related to the decline of unions and growing income inequality Drawing upon plant level evidence on emerging employment practices they provide a comprehensive analysis of changes in employment systems and labor management relations They conclude that while the variation in employment patterns is increasing within countries evidence suggests that there is much commonality across countries in the nature of that variation and also similarity in the processes through which variation is appearing Hence the term converging divergences relevant issues is strongest and most open. However, the twenty-four distinguished authors include representatives from countries as far flung as Belarus and Congo, Korea and Turkey, and with these contributions the analysis extends to a study of fundamental rights as they actually exist under a wide variety of labour and social security law regimes in today's world. Collective Bargaining, Discrimination, Social Security and European Integration should not be overlooked by any policymaker or academic in the fields of labour and industrial relations law or social security law. It is one of the most detailed and current investigations we have of a situation that threatens to become a crisis in contemporary law and society.
