Healing at the Borderland of Medicine and Religion Michael H. Cohen, 2007-09-06 One of the transformations facing health care in the twenty first century is the safe effective and appropriate integration of conventional or biomedical care with complementary and alternative medical CAM therapies such as acupuncture chiropractic massage therapy herbal medicine and spiritual healing In Healing at the Borderland of Medicine and Religion Michael H Cohen discusses the need for establishing rules and standards to facilitate appropriate integration of conventional and CAM therapies The kind of integrated health care many patients seek dwells in a borderland between the physical and the spiritual between the quantifiable and the immeasurable Cohen observes But the present environment fails to present clear rules for clinicians regarding which therapies to recommend accept or discourage and how to discuss patient requests regarding inclusion of such therapies Focusing on the social intellectual and spiritual dimensions of integrative care and grounding his analysis in the attendant legal regulatory and institutional changes Cohen provides a multidisciplinary examination of the shift to a more fluid pluralistic health care environment

Vital Conversations Dennis Rosen, 2014-09-23 The health care system in the United States is by far the most expensive in the world yet its outcomes are decidedly mediocre in comparison to those of other countries Poor communication between doctors and patients Dennis Rosen argues is at the heart of this disparity a pervasive problem that damages not only the well being of the patient but also the integrity of the health care system and society as a whole Drawing upon research in biomedicine sociology and anthropology and integrating personal stories from his medical practice in three different countries and as a patient Rosen shows how important good communication between physicians and patients is to the provision of high quality and less expensive care Without it treatment adherence and preventive services decline and the rates of medical complications hospital readmissions and unnecessary testing and procedures rise Rosen illustrates the consequences of these problems from both the caregiver and patient perspectives and explores the socioeconomic and cultural factors that cause important information to be literally lost in translation He concludes with a prescriptive chapter for patients and physicians aimed at building the cultural competencies and communications skills necessary for higher quality less expensive care making medicine more satisfying for all involved
