Controlling Your Financial Future Betty Meredith, 2002-06-01 Money is one of the most powerful motivators of human behavior. Every householder needs money in order to provide the basics of life for the family or individual. While money can't buy happiness, happiness and peace of mind can be obtained when a person matches how they use their money to support their personal values, priorities, and needs. This self-paced workbook, the first in a series, has been used enthusiastically in corporate training workshops by thousands of employees since 1989 by prominent financial institutions such as Charles Schwab Co., Standard Poor's, Chase Manhattan Bank. It is designed for the average person, provides a proven process to create a basic do-it-yourself financial plan by entering personal financial figures on easy-to-use worksheets. With Controlling Your Financial Future, learners learn how to control their financial future by controlling their present money behavior. Evaluate their current financial situation, identify where to make appropriate changes, set goals, pay down debt, use a spending plan so they will be more financially secure within a year. Discover Learning Inc.'s mission to help the average person experience greater confidence, knowledge, peace of mind when making financial planning decisions so they may experience a happier, healthier, more productive life.
