For Multi Agent Systems addresses the complexity of choosing which multi agent control technologies are appropriate for a given problem domain or a given application Without such knowledge when faced with a new application domain agent developers must rely on past experience and intuition to determine whether a multi agent system is the right approach and if so how to structure the agents how to decompose the problem and how to coordinate the activities of the agents and so forth This unique collection of contributions written by leading international researchers in the agent community provides valuable insight into the issues of deciding which technique to apply and when it is appropriate to use them The contributions also discuss potential trade offs or caveats involved with each decision An Application Science For Multi Agent Systems is an excellent reference for anyone involved in developing multi agent systems Artificial Intelligence: Theories, Models and Applications Ilias Maglogiannis,Vassilis Plagianakos,Ioannis Vlahavas,2012-05-26 This book constitutes the

Tolerance for Multi-Agent Systems Katia Potiron,Amal El Fallah Seghrouchni,Patrick Taillibert,2013-03-21 Faults are a concern for Multi Agent Systems MAS designers especially if the MAS are built for industrial or military use because there must be some guarantee of dependability Some fault classification exists for classical systems and is used to define faults When dependability is at stake such fault classification may be used from the beginning of the system s conception to define fault classes and specify which types of faults are expected Thus one may want to use fault classification for MAS however From Fault Classification to Fault Tolerance for Multi Agent Systems argues that working with autonomous and proactive agents implies a special analysis of the faults potentially occurring in the system Moreover the field of Fault Tolerance FT provides numerous methods adapted to handle different kinds of faults Some handling methods have been studied within the MAS domain adapting to their specificities and capabilities but increasing the large amount of FT methods Therefore unless being an expert in fault tolerance it is difficult to choose evaluate or compare fault tolerance methods preventing a lot of developed applications from not only to being more pleasant to use but more importantly from at least being tolerant to common faults From Fault Classification to Fault Tolerance for Multi Agent Systems shows that specification phase guidelines and fault handler studies can be derived from the fault classification extension made for MAS From this perspective fault classification can become a unifying concept between fault tolerance methods in MAS
