Journal of Eastern African Research & Development, 1994 Developing Uganda Holger Bernt Hansen, 1998 Uganda's recovery since Museveni came to power in 1986 has been one of the heartening achievements in a continent where the media have given intense coverage to disasters This book assesses the question of whether the reality lives up to the image that has so impressed the supporters of its recovery What has actually happened How successful have the reforms been thus far What are the prospects for Uganda's future Essays by the top scholars in the field span the breadth of the issue from Uganda's growth out of poverty to development at the grass roots level Developing Uganda replaces the myth and misinformation the last decade has witnessed with a realistic scrutiny by those who have studied it with care and caution African Studies Review, 1983 Occasional Publication University of the State of New York. Institute of Education, 1964 Socio-economic Position of East African Rural Women Suraiya Tabassum Rehman, 2004 Extrait de la couverture Women all over the world raise families often single handedly They care for children the sick the elderly and often adult able bodied men as well In some countries they work more than fifteen sixteen hours a day tilling the fields fetching water carrying firewood and cooking because their prime responsibility is of home makers When it is stated that in East Africa the home is the responsibility of women the statement is not to be interpreted lightly It does not simply refer to the cleaning cooking and childcare but also to the production and preparation of all that goes into making her home It is well established that east african rural women have had a strong historic and continuing role in food production processing and marketing They have the highest female participation rate in agriculture of all regions of the world Even then they are not considered as significant contributors to east african economy and their back breaking contribution falls outside the scope of official statistical statistics resulting in their exclusion from legal power i e ownership of land and facilities such as credit or technological advancement training The present book tries to have a look into the lives of these neglected contributors with the hope that the policy makers would take women s concern into their plans and programmes
