Developing Helping Skills Valerie Nash Chang, Sheryn Thompson Scott, Carol L. Decker, 2013      Developing Helping Skills Valerie Nash Chang, Carol Decker, Sheryn Thompson Scott, 2012-02-01 Chang Scott and Decker's multilayered teaching and learning system presents a creative blend of learning methods and clear presentation of topics to help students think like practitioners and apply foundational skills to real world practice. Students first read about professional practice and the skills required to work effectively with clients. Students then think and write about the ideas and concepts presented in the text by completing homework exercises following each new concept. Next, students watch and discuss the accompanying DVD available for packaging with the text which demonstrates how to use the skills covered in the text with an individual family or group. Furthermore, the text's modified case-based method introduces a continuing case one section at a time throughout the chapters which helps students learn how to think like professionals. Finally, exercises with specific directions for role playing the client, practitioner, and peer supervisor followed by a simple evaluation tool completed by the peer supervisor and practitioner promote practice and evaluation.

Build your fundamental helping skills and more important the ability to transfer those skills to actual real world situations with the unique approach found in Chang Scott Decker's DEVELOPING HELPING SKILLS A STEP BY STEP APPROACH. These experienced authors have created a blend of learning methods and clear presentations throughout this text and integrated DVD that help readers at any level think like practitioners and appropriately apply foundational skills. Self assessment, critical thinking, and practice play a central role in the book's presentation as the text prepares professionals in training for generalist practice with individuals, families, and groups including entire communities and organizations. Whether you are preparing for social work, psychology, counseling, marriage and family therapy, pastoral counseling, human services, or a related helping profession, this unique book offers the fundamental knowledge and skills sets you need. The authors' multilayered learning system, unlike any other text on the market, integrates reading, discussion, observation, and visualization practice and evaluation. You begin by reading the text and completing the homework exercises that follow each new concept. You then view the accompanying DVD to see how to apply the skills in practice effectively. The text's case-based approach helps you think like a professional with a continuing case that is introduced one section at a time. Finally, role playing in practice interviews and completing evaluation tools allow you to assess progress and determine your personal readiness to apply your skills within actual life settings.

Scott,2017-07-14 This updated and expanded second edition of Book provides a user friendly introduction to the subject Taking a clear structural framework it guides the reader through the subject s core elements A flowing writing style combines with the use of illustrations and diagrams throughout the text to ensure the reader understands even the most complex of concepts This succinct and enlightening overview is a required reading for all those interested in the subject We hope you find this book useful in shaping your future career Business Developing Helping Skills + Mindtap Social Work, 1 Term - 6 Months Access Card ,

Manual for Use in Conjunction with Developing Helping Skills Maurie Howe,1978 Helping Skills and Strategies Thomas M. Skovholt,David A. Rivers (M.A.),2007 Presents an approach to skill development that revolves around four core areas exploring client concerns promoting client understanding charting a new course and working for positive change This text leads students in developing helping skills It features hypothetical dialogues at the end of each chapter showing skills for effective helping Developing Helping Skills in an Online Environment Jill Gomez,2012 There is minimal consensus on the pedagogy of teaching interpersonal skills to undergraduate students entering the helping professions This is problematic as many bachelor level social workers and addiction counseling students have not consistently been taught interpersonal helping skills yet many will enter the workforce post program completion For those programs that have transitioned to online the question arises as to whether students can meet the learning objectives of skill training in an online environment The study examined students mastery of content knowledge of students and their helping skills based on Carkhuffs ratings of skills Another research goal is to process my teaching experience as the instructor who developed and taught the online course This study used a mixed method that utilizes pre and post test design and action research The t test of pre and post scores on knowledge and skills showed that there were significant differences on students skills The results from the action research data sources suggest that helping skills can be developed in an online environment when instruction includes a dynamic learning environment including sessions with modeling practice and feedback This study informs practitioners about the challenges with transferring skill based material to an online format and the technology challenges that must be managed to facilitate learning in this new environment The Art of Helping; an Introduction to Life Skills Robert R. Carkhuff,1973 Help Seeking in Academic Settings Stuart A. Karabenick,Richard S. Newman,2013-01-11 Building on Karabenick s earlier volume on this topic and maintaining its high standards of scholarship and intellectual rigor Help Seeking in Academic Settings Goals Groups and Contexts brings together contemporary work that is theoretically as well as practically important It highlights current trends in the area and gives expanded attention to applications to teaching and learning The contributors represent an internationally recognized group of scholars and researchers who provide depth of analysis and breadth of coverage Help seeking is currently considered an important learning strategy that is linked to students achievement goals and academic performance This volume not only provides answers to who why and when learners seek help but raises questions for readers to consider for future research Chapters examine help seeking as a self regulated learning strategy and its relationship to achievement goal theory help seeking in collaborative groups culture and help seeking in K 12 and college contexts help seeking and academic support services such as academic advising centers help seeking in computer based interactive learning environments help seeking in response to peer harassment at school and help seeking in non academic settings such as the workplace This book is intended for researchers academic support personnel and graduate students across the field of educational psychology particularly those interested in student motivation and self regulation
