Developing External Partnerships For Cost Effective Enhanced Service:

Developing External Partnerships for Cost-Effective, Enhanced Service Larry H. Dietz, Ernest J. Enchelmayer, 2002-01-24

With growing expectations from students parents staff faculty and the community for efficient and effective services on the campus student affairs administrators are increasing their use of outsourcing arrangements and external partnerships to meet these demands This volume offers a variety of models for the enhancement of services through external partnership including on and off campus collaboration with public and private entities It explores the challenges student affairs professionals face when determining how to meet a particular constituency s needs in the most cost effective and efficient manner A significant theme that emerges in this connection is the importance of structure in assessing and evaluating current levels of service The ideas shared in this volume will assist decision makers in the process of evaluating current services and determining whether and in what form external partnerships can improve those services for the benefit of the campus and the community This is the 96th issue of the quarterly report New Directions for Student Services The Handbook of Student Affairs Administration George S. McClellan, Jeremy Stringer, 2011-01-11 What issues and trends affect higher education and student affairs today In this fully updated handbook leading experts discuss the answer to this and other essential questions They provide a definitive reference for student affairs professionals at all levels of administration and management The handbook offers specific practical advice as well as broad approaches to planning and problem solving It contains modernized discussions on such critical topics as institutional mission institutional governance understanding campus environments finance and budgeting assessment program planning staff selection training and evaluation and much more Total Quality Management Revised Edition: For Anna University, 3/e Dale H. Financial Issues in Student Affairs John H. Schuh, 2003-10-21 Distinguished professor John H. Schuh edits this critical look at the financial situation in higher education today. Contributors discuss seven specific issues concerning the financing of student affairs on contemporary college campuses and explore effective strategies student affairs professionals need to ensure that programs and services that serve students and other important stakeholders survive and thrive. Topics addressed include the differences in financing student affairs in public and in private institutions as well as challenges in financing student unions and activities health and counseling services student housing and campus recreation. Examining contemporary problems in selected areas of student affairs finance this volume is one of several in this series on managing resources in student affairs. Others addressing related topics include Issue 89 The Role Student Aid Plays in Enrollment Management Issue 92 Leadership and Management Issues for a New Century Issue 96 Developing External Partnerships for Cost Effective Enhanced Services and Issue 101 Planning and Achieving Successful Student Affairs Facilities Projects. As state governmental support for public institutions continues to erode student affairs units operating in the current financial environment have to be nimble and creative to sustain their viability. Drawing from his own twenty seven year career as a student affairs practitioner and the contributions and research of leading student affairs professionals in the field John Schuh provides an outstanding resource for student affairs professionals facing the serious financial challenges of today and tomorrow. This is the 103rd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services Technology in Student Affairs: Supporting Student Learning and Services Kevin Kruger, 2005 The literature and research on the use of technology in student affairs is still very limited. This volume of New Direction for Student Services was written to increase our understanding of the role of technology in the student learning experience of campus based and as well as distance learners. Information technology has become a central tool in creating 24/7 self service experiences for students interacting with campus administrative functions. Recent technologies also create the real possibility of moving beyond administrative functions to playing a central role in student learning community development and student development. This volume monograph attempts to capture the current thinking around the use of technology in student affairs. It is not a review of the actual technologies in use in student affairs. The pace of change is so fast that such a treatment would make the writing out of date within two years. In that light this volume focuses less on the technology and more on the ways in which the technology is altering the organization of student affairs the ways in which the lines between campus based students and distance learners are blurring and the increasing role technology is playing in student learning NACADA Journal, 2006
