The rampant nature of technology has caused a shift in information seeking behaviors In addition current trends such as evidence based medicine and information literacy mean that one time instructional sessions cannot provide our patrons with all of the skills they need For this reason many librarians are working to develop curriculum based instruction that is semester long or consisting of many sessions throughout an academic program In addition to teaching librarians are also becoming embedded in the curriculums they support by serving as web based course designers problem based learning facilitators or members of curriculum committees Although it is fairly obvious that library instruction is important and that librarians should be equipped to provide this instruction the majority of ALA accredited programs offer only one course on library instruction the courses are only available as electives and they are often only offered once a year Librarians need to gain their instructional experiences through real life experiences mentors and of course books like this one Many books commonly discuss one shot sessions and provide tips for getting the most out of that type of instruction There are not as many that discuss curriculum based instruction in a section let alone an entire book Curriculum Based Library Instruction From Cultivating Faculty Relationships to Assessment highlights the movement beyond one shot instruction sessions specifically focusing on situations where academic librarians have developed curriculum based sessions and or become involved in curriculum committees This volume describes and provides examples of librarians varied roles in the curriculum of education programs These roles include semester long or multi session instructor web based course designer problem based learning facilitator and member of a curriculum committee In addition to describing the roles that librarians have in supporting curriculum the book describes how to carry out those roles with sections devoted to adult learning theory teaching methods developing learning objectives and working with faculty to develop curriculum Examples of library sessions devoted to information literacy evidence based practice information literacy and biomedical informatics are included This book is not limited to one mode of delivering information and covers examples of face to face distance and blended learning initiatives Teaching Reading with Literature Gail E. Tompkins,Lea M. McGee,1993 Complete with step by step action plans this book provides the theories techniques and tools pre service and in service teachers need to implement an effective literature based reading program Coming Together as Readers Donna Ogle,2007-07-03 This second edition helps educators build a successful reading culture by developing community collaborations that include parents university partnerships and libraries Handbook of Library Training Practice and Development Mr Alan Brine,2012-10-01 Librarians must now work at a different level from that required 20 years ago but the training available is not always appropriate or accessible to all. The authors of this volume have responded to this significant and continuing change within the profession by offering a much needed guide to best practice for staff training and development in library and information work. This handbook addresses new aspects of service provision both in the UK and abroad and provides an up to date review of the current developments that are becoming increasingly important to librarians through the influence of the electronic age and the widening of areas of professional involvement. The Handbook of Library Training Practice and Development will be invaluable to those responsible for the development of staff and line managers as well as providing a crucial insight into the information profession for anyone new to this career path or looking to develop their knowledge within it. LIRT Library Instruction Handbook Library Instruction Round Table (American Library Association), 1990-04-15. An academic library's instruction program reflects and communicates its vision for teaching and learning within the context of its institution and the instruction coordinator plays an essential role in shaping and advancing this vision. Instruction coordinators and directors in academic libraries may have a variety of titles and wear an entire wardrobe's worth of hats but they face many of the same challenges in developing, promoting and evaluating their instruction programs. This book approaches using the instruction program as the catalyst to further the library's agenda for teaching and learning and gives instruction program directors a set of resources that will help them map out, enact and assess the impact of this agenda. This book is ideal for librarians and administrators who direct, coordinate or lead an academic library's teaching and learning program and is particularly useful for new instruction program coordinators, either those new to their position or new to their institution. Where to Look
