Developing Parenting Programmes:

Developing Parenting Programmes Celia Smith, 1996 Parenting Programmes: What the Parents Say Katy Smart, 2020-11-19 This book presents original research examining parents' perspectives on the structure, content and delivery of parenting programmes. It explores how parents have personally been impacted by attending such a programme and finally whether or not this might be affecting their child. Utilising an innovative mixed methods research approach based around a critical realist philosophy, the author follows 136 families through one of three parenting programmes and beyond. In doing so, she provides important new insights regarding the efficacy of the parenting programmes, demonstrating a real world application of the transplant model of parent professional practice in action. This book provides a valuable new resource for students and scholars working in the psychology of education, childhood studies and across the social sciences more broadly. It will also be of interest to policymakers and professionals involved in the development and implementation of parenting programmes.

Parenting Programmes and Minority Ethnic Families Jane Barlow, Richard Shaw, Sarah Stewart-Brown, Race Equality Unit, 2004-01-01 This downloadable report reviews a number of parenting programmes and provides insight into the ways in which parents find the programmes helpful.

Parenting and Child Development Abdul Khaleque, 2021-03-08 This research based book covers the core components of modern parenting and child development across multi ethnic and cross cultural contexts in Asia, Africa, Europe and North and South America, with a focus on the United States. Parenting and Child Development Across Ethnicity and Culture is based on a cohesive framework that links physical, psychological, social, cognitive and emotional aspects of children's lives to their experiences of parental behavior. This book covers the fundamentals of parent-child relationships, including the theoretical perspective of parenting, positive and negative parenting behaviors and changing patterns of parenting from infancy through adolescence. Explored are parent-child relationships and their implications for children's health, well-being and quality of life in different family forms, including parenting in drug addicted families, homeless families, cohabiting families, single parent families and LGBT families around the world. Using an array of theories with relevant empirical findings, the practical implications for child development both within the United States and across the globe are highlighted. Also included is specific information about tools and techniques for measuring intimate relationships and intervention strategies for relationship problems.
