Digital Archaeology Patrick Daly, Thomas L. Evans, 2004-08-02 The use of computers in archaeology is entering a new phase of unparalleled development moving on from a specialist methodology on the margins to a powerful practical and analytical tool used across all areas of archaeological interest With a thorough examination of the ways in which both everyday and cutting edge technologies can be used to inform and enhance traditional methods this book brings together ideology from the academic world and pragmatic concrete examples to show how fieldwork theory and technology fit together today as never before Covering a history of the rise of computer use in archaeology as well as a thorough assessment of a number of high profile examples such as the Ferrybridge Chariot this book shows how new technologies have been implemented into both theory and method as an integral part of the archaeological process With contributions from renowned experts experienced professionals and emerging names in the field this unique forward thinking book brings together previously disparate aspects of archaeology in a new holistic approach to the study of the past A companion website is also available to allow further study of the images included

Twenty-five Years of Archaeology in Gloucestershire Bristol and Gloucestershire Archaeological Society,Cotswold Archaeology,2006 Twenty five years is a long time in the study of prehistory and these papers given at a conference in Cheltenham in 2004 seek to review the excavations surveys chance finds and serious investigations carried out over two and a half decades

The Quality of the Archaeological Record Charles Perreault,2024-05-31 Paleobiology struggled for decades to influence our understanding of evolution and the history of life because it was stymied by a focus on microevolution and an incredibly patchy fossil record But in the 1970s the field took a radical turn as paleobiologists began to investigate processes that could only be recognized in the fossil record across larger scales of time and space That turn led to a new wave of macroevolutionary investigations novel insights into the evolution of species and a growing prominence for the field among the biological sciences In The Quality of the Archaeological Record Charles Perreault shows that archaeology not only faces a parallel problem but may also find a model in the rise of paleobiology for a shift in the science and theory of the field To get there he proposes a more macroscale approach to making sense of the archaeological record an approach that reveals patterns and processes not visible within the span of a human lifetime but rather across an observation window thousands of years long and thousands of kilometers wide Just as with the fossil record the archaeological record has the scope necessary to detect macroscale cultural phenomena because it can provide samples that are large enough to cancel out the noise generated by micro scale events By recalibrating their research to the quality of the archaeological record and developing a true macroarchaeology program Perreault argues archaeologists can finally unleash the full contributive value of their discipline

The Aesthetics of Scientific Experiments Milena Ivanova,Alice Murphy,2023-06-16 The relationship between aesthetics and science has begun to generate substantial interest However for the most part the focus has been on the beauty of theories and other aspects of scientific practice have been neglected This book offers a novel perspective on aesthetics in experimentation via ten original essays from an interdisciplinary group comprised of philosophers historians of science and art and artists The collection provides an analysis of the concept of beauty in the evaluation of experiments What properties do practising experimenters value How have the aesthetic properties of scientific experiments changed over the years Secondly the volume looks at the role that aesthetic factors including negative values such as ugliness as well as experiences of the sublime and the profound play in the construction of an experiment and its reception Thirdly the chapters provide in depth historical case studies from the Royal Society which also allows for a study of the depiction of scientific experiment in artworks as well as contemporary examples from the Large Hadron Collider and cases of experiments designed by artificial intelligence Finally it offers an exploration of the commonalities between how we learn from experiments on the one hand and the cognitive value of artworks on the other The Aesthetics of Scientific Experiments will be of interest to researchers and advanced students working in philosophy and history of science philosophy and history of art as well as practising scientists and science communicators

Critical Archaeology in the Digital Age Kevin Garstki, 2022-02-01 Every part of archaeological practice is intimately tied to digital technologies but how deeply do we really understand the ways these technologies impact the theoretical trends in archaeology how these trends affect the adoption of these technologies or how the use of technology alters our interactions with the human past This volume suggests a critical approach to archaeology in a digital world a purposeful and systematic application of digital tools in archaeology This is a call to pay attention to your digital tools to be explicit about how you are using them and to understand how they work and impact your own practice The chapters in this volume demonstrate how this critical reflexive approach to archaeology in the digital age can be accomplished touching on topics that include 3D data predictive and procedural modelling digital publishing digital archiving public and community engagement ethics and global sustainability The scale and scope of this research demonstrates how necessary it is for all archaeological practitioners to approach this digital age with a critical perspective and to be purposeful in our use of digital technologies

Murray,2001-06-28 Written by the most authoritative scholars from around the world a massive treasurehouse of information on all aspects of archaeology from prehistory to the present day Encyclopedia of Archaeology History and Discoveries explores the archaeologists sites debates techniques methods and issues that are central to the global practice of archaeology Three richly illustrated volumes trace the development of the field from the ancient Greeks to the present day Through detailed tours of major excavation sites from all over the world Chichen Itza Machu Picchu Ephesus Pompeii the tomb of Tutankhamun as well as more obscure sites like Brzesc Kujawski in Poland readers gain an appreciation for the inherent challenges all archeologists share in locating recovering and making sense of evidence of past human lives The Histories and Discoveries volumes profile significant archaeologists such as the indefatigable Gertrude Bell an expert on Arab affairs during World War I and Iraq s director of antiquities in the 1920s Additional entries ranging from the Dead Sea scrolls and rock art to techniques like dating and remote sensing round out this watershed in the history of archaeology Includes 500 A Z entries on pioneers such as J Desmond Clark sites including Chich n Itz in Mexico remote sensing and other concepts and techniques periods regions organizations and museums Contributors include some of the world s most eminent archaeologists Includes maps depicting key points of reference like ethnic groups in the West Indies at the time of Columbus Contains photographs of excavation sites such as an ancient burial ground in Chile shields petroglyphs and other artifacts

St Peter's Street, Northampton John H. Williams,1979 Conderton Camp, Worcestershire Nicholas Thomas,2005
Oxbow says Three hillforts have been located on Bredon Hill in Worcestershire one of which is Conderton Camp a small settlement constructed between the late 6th and 4th century BC and abandoned by the end of the Iron Age period Once a classic small hillfort possibly serving as a central communal meeting place and market the site became a fortified permanent settlement in the Middle Iron Age This report publishes the findings of an earthwork survey and study of the environs of the site geophysical investigations and excavations carried out in 1958 and 1959 along with specialist discussions of the finds What is great about this volume and many like it is that the data and factual information is interspersed with summary discussions of the evidence such as the significance of the metalworking debris what the faunal remains can tell us about animal husbandry and diet and the significance of the many storage pits at the site Aside from the Appendices the report concludes with an excellent summary discussion of Conderton Camp and its people Nicholas Thomas examines how the Camp related to other contemporary sites and to the local landscape what natural resources were available and exploited the choices and considerations of those that built the Camp and its interior houses how people lived and fed themselves what craft activities were taking place and speculates on Conderton s purpose perhaps as a central place and how it was linked with other communities of the Severn Valley Summaries in French and German
