Applying Educational Research: How to Read, Do, and Use Research to Solve Problems of Practice Joyce P. Gall, M. D. Gall, Walter R. Borg, 2013-10-03 This text is intended for instructors who emphasize teaching students how to locate read and interpret and apply the findings of educational research studies This revision addresses how to design and conduct a research study in more detail The text includes numerous recent published research articles involving high interest problems of educational practice The chapters which treat quantitative qualitative and applied forms of educational research stand alone allowing instructors to choose those they want to cover This text brings research alive for educators by introducing readers to people who actually do research Designed for courses focused primarily on applying rather than conducting research it includes 13 actual research articles reprinted in their entirety The book makes no assumptions about readers prior knowledge of research or statistics This text builds students confidence so that they are able to successfully read research reports and research. For the first time readers will see the relevance of research to educational practice.

Doing Research about Education Geoffrey Walford, 1998. This book brings together semi autobiographical accounts from major educationalists about their influential research focusing on the practical and personal aspects of the research process. The collection reflects the great changes that have occurred within educational research since the 1980s and deals with the issues and situations of the late 1990s. It includes accounts that cover the various stages of the research process, a sampling of topics, the diversity of methodologies used in educational research and a range of theoretical perspectives. There is coverage of qualitative and quantitative methodologies and of large and smaller scale research. Also discussed are ESRC programme research, contract research and theoretical research.

What Does Good Education Research Look Like? Lyn Yates, 2004-03-01. A powerful well informed argument for the importance of pluralism. This book will tell young researchers what they need to know about doing educational research; it will encourage experienced researchers to see their own practice in context. It is a profound book that everyone should read. Professor Jane Gaskell, Dean OISE, University of Toronto. This brilliant guide to judging educational research examines the most basic questions about research practice that most people think are settled and reveals them as problematic. Humorous, sharp and thoughtful, this readable inquisition explores from differing perspectives what does good education research look like in multiple forms including dissertations, journal articles and grant proposals.

Sari Knopp Biklen, Laura and Douglas Meredith, Professor Syracuse University, USA. This book explains and critically examines some key debates about the quality and value of education research and shows how it must meet different demands in different places, times and conditions. A major part of the book provides detailed analyses and guidance to different areas in which education research is judged, from academic theses to the press, from highest level competition for prestigious grants to collaborative work with practitioners.

Lyn Yates asks probing questions in six education research arenas: the thesis, the research grant application, the journal article, the consultancy application, book publishing and the press. Who are the judges here? What expectations and networks do they bring to the task? What are the explicit and implicit criteria for good research in that area? What are the common failings? What does good research look like? The book is an indispensable companion to existing textbooks on research methodology. It provides a clear and provocative discourse about the banalities and disorderliness in which education researchers have to operate.

Doing Research to Improve Teaching and Learning Kimberly M. Williams, 2021. In this rapidly changing teaching and learning environment, one of the most promising ways for faculty at institutions of higher education to improve their teaching is to capitalize upon their skills as researchers. This book is a step by step guide for doing research to inform and improve teaching and learning. With background and instruction about how to engage in these methodologies including historical analyses, qualitative, quantitative and mixed methods, the second edition of Doing Research to Improve Teaching and Learning discusses a process of working collaboratively and reflectively to improve one's teaching craft.
