Historical Archaeology of Childhood and Parenting April Kamp-Whittaker, Jamie J. Devine, Suzanne M. Spencer-Wood, 2024-04-12 The study of childhood in historical archaeology enriches interpretations of the past but also has the potential for contributing to the understanding of methodological and theoretical issues in archaeology Archaeologically children are understudied relative to both their demographic and social importance partly because children are viewed as difficult to discern in the archaeological record Historical archaeology with its access to historical documents to supplement and illuminate archaeological evidence provides an opportunity to gain a greater understanding of the ways children s daily lives in the past were expressed in historically changing types and patterns of material culture Recent research presented in this volume contributes valuable perspectives for conceptualizing the historically changing social nature of childhood and methods for illuminating the roles of children Case studies are designed to illustrate methodological and theoretical advances in the historical archaeology of materialized experiences discourses identities places and their meanings associated with parenting and childhood The volume is organized into three sections devoted to case studies about 1 how childhood and parenting have been socially constructed cross culturally and temporally 2 social ideologies of childhood in contested spaces and 3 the relationship between children s experiences and adult expectations of childhood Each chapter demonstrates advances in current methods or theories used in the archaeology of childhood A final discussant drawn from the broader field of research on the archaeology of childhood provides a commentary on the ways the perspectives provided in the volume can be employed by researchers outside the sub discipline of historical archaeology

A Companion to Archaeology John Bintliff, 2008-04-15 A Companion to Archaeology features essays from 27 of the world s leading authorities on different types of archaeology that aim to define the field and describe what it means to be an archaeologist Shows that

International Handbook of Historical Archaeology Teresita Majewski, David Gaimster, 2009-06-07 In studying the past archaeologists have focused on the material remains of our ancestors Prehistorians generally have only artifacts to study and rely on the diverse material record for their understanding of past societies and their behavior Those involved in studying historically documented cultures not only have extensive material remains but also contemporary texts images and a range of investigative technologies to enable them to build a broader and more reflexive picture of how past societies communities and individuals operated and behaved Increasingly historical archaeology refers not to a particular period place or a method but rather an approach that interrogates the tensions between artifacts and texts irrespective of context In short historical archaeology provides direct evidence for how humans have shaped the world we live in today Historical archaeology is a branch of global archaeology that has grown in the last 40 years from its North American base into an increasingly global community of archaeologists each studying their area of the world in a historical context Where historical archaeology started as part of the study of the post Columbian societies of the United States and Canada it has now expanded to interface with the post medieval archaeologies of Europe and the diverse post imperial experiences of Africa Latin America and Australasia The 36 essays in the International Handbook of Historical Archaeology have been specially commissioned from the leading researchers in their fields creating a wide ranging digest of the increasingly global field of historical archaeology The volume is divided into two sections the first reviewing the key themes issues and approaches of historical archaeology today and the second containing a series of case studies charting the development and current state of historical archaeological practice around the world This key reference work captures the energy and diversity of this global discipline today

Comparative Archaeologies Ludomir R Lozny, 2011-04-06 Archaeology as with all of the social sciences has always been characterized by competing theoretical propositions based on diverse bodies of locally acquired data In order to fulfill local regional expectations different goals have been assigned to the practitioners of Archaeology in different regions These goals might be entrenched in local politics or social expectations behind cultural heritage research This comprehensive book explores regional archaeologies from a sociological perspective to identify and explain regional differences in archaeological practice as well as their existing similarities This work covers not only the currently dominant Anglo American archaeological paradigm but also Latin America Western and Eastern Europe Asia and Africa all of which have developed their own unique archaeological traditions The contributions in this work cover these alternative archaeologies in the context of their own geographical political and socio economic settings as well as the context of the currently accepted mainstream approaches

Archaeological Thinking Charles E. Orser, 2015 How do archaeologists think How do they use the scattered and often fragmentary remains from the past both historical and excavated to create meaningful sensible interpretations of human history In Archaeological Thinking Charles E Orser Jr provides a commonsense guide to applying critical thinking skills to archaeological questions and evidence Rather than critiquing and debunking specific cases of pseudo archaeology or concentrating on archaeological theory Orser considers the basics of scientific thinking the use of logic and analogy the meaning and context of facts and the evaluation of source materials He explains concisely and accessibly how archaeologists use these principles to create pictures of the past and teaches students to develop the skills needed to make equally reasoned interpretations

Between Dirt and Discussion Steven Archer,Kevin Bartoy,2007-02-15 Interpretations of the past are under constant critical scrutiny in archaeology In recent decades theoretical views have profoundly changed the conceptions of both the past and archaeologists relationship to this object of study However our basic excavation and analytical methods have undergone little critical re evaluation Often archaeological discussions begin as if data were already established independent of the research designs and analytical choices that produce them Interpretation often ends at the lectern but it has many beginnings within the traditional archaeological process Exploring how data is generated and interpreted by historical archaeologists it is at the intersection of dirt and discussion The cases presented in this volume revisit old methods and previous scholarly approaches with new perspectives along with incorporating the newest technologies available to understanding the past Rethinking the classics and engaging with new modes of data creation also generate fresh theoretical approaches Using their own work as examples the contributors explore the connections between methodology and interpretation Between Dirt and Discussion advocates recentering the materials that make archaeology archaeology in the hopes of reinvigorating dialogues about the historic past and archaeological contributions to its understanding The American Catholic Historical Researches ,1905
