Domestic Animals Andrea Branzi, Nicoletta Branzi, 1987 Andrea Branzi one of Italy's foremost designers and critics and Nicoletta Branzi designer of limited edition art clothing for women introduce the neoprimitive style under the generic title Domestic Animals These mysterious creature objects are oriented to domestic settings intended to be used or worn but they are also fetishistic and contemplative arousing expectations that magic or tribal rituals are about to be performed Uniting precision of design with natural raw materials these objects fashioned from tree trunks sticks of wood and animal skins joined to steel bamboo rods and painted in bright totemic colors fascinate us Taken out of their wild settings and tamed by technology domestic animals establish a loving relationship with man sharing his most private space We have not seen anything like them in the world of interior furniture or fashion design before The ideas and creations in Domestic Animals were developed by the Branzis over several years and can be understood as a metaphor of the relationship that links man to a number of animal and technical presences within the home The Branzis have created clothing furniture and objects of decoration that challenge the conventional notions of habitation Where living too often takes place in empty spaces marked out by couches they have introduced an environment of archetypal symbols and materials that invite a new way of inhabiting the home Andrea Branzi lives and works in Milan where he is Educational Director of Domus Academy and Editorial Director of MODO His last book The Hot House Italian New Wave Design is an MIT Press paperback

Domestic animals; the neoprimitive style A. Branzi, 1987 Design Discourse Victor Margolin, 1989-09-15 The editor has gathered together a body of writing in the emerging field of design studies The contributors argue in different ways for a rethinking of design in the light of its cultural significance and its powerful position in today's society The collection begins with a discussion of the various expressions of opposition to the modernists' purist approach toward design Drawing on postmodernist theory and other critical strategies the writers examine the relations among design technology and social organization to show how design has become a complex and multidisciplinary activity The second section provides examples of new methods of interpreting and analysing design ranging from rhetoric and semiotics to phenomenology demonstrating how meaning is created visually A final section related to design history shifts its emphasis to ideological frameworks such as capitalism and patriarchy that establish boundaries for the production and use of design

Domestic Animals, 19?? Design by Accident Alexandra Midal, 2023-09-26 A counterhistory and new historiography of design In Design by Accident Alexandra Midal declares the autonomy of design in and on its own terms This meticulously researched work proposes not only a counterhistory but a new historiography of design shedding light on overlooked historical landmarks and figures while reevaluating the legacies of design's established luminaries from the nineteenth century to the present Midal rejects both linear narratives of progress and the long held perception of design as a footnote to the histories of fine art and architecture By weaving critical analysis of the canon of design history and theory together with special attention to the writings of designers themselves she draws out the nuances and radical potentials of the discipline from William Morris's ambivalence toward industry to Catharine Beecher's proto feminist household appliances to the Bauhaus's Expressionist origins and the influence of Herbert Marcuse on Joe Colombo      Informality through Sustainability Antonino Di Raimo, Steffen Lehmann, Alessandro Melis, 2020-12-30 Informality through Sustainability explores the phenomenon of informality within urban settlements and aims to unravel the subtle links between informal settlements and sustainability Penetrating its global profile and considering urban informality through an understanding of local implications the authors collectively reveal specific correlations between sites and their local inhabitants The book opposes simplistic calls to legalise informal settlements or to view them as problems to be solved It comes at a time when common notions of informality are being increasingly challenged In 25 chapters the book presents contributions from well known scholars and practitioners whose theoretical or practical work addresses informality and sustainability at various levels from city planning and urban design to public space and architectural education Whilst previous studies on informal settlements have mainly focused on cases in developing countries approaching the topic through social cultural and material dimensions the book explores the concept across a range of contexts including former Communist countries and those in the so called Global North Contributions also explore understandings of informality at various scalar levels region precinct neighbourhood and individual building Thus this work helps reposition informality as a relational concept at various scales of urbanisation This book will be of great benefit to planners architects researchers and policymakers interested in the interplay between informality and sustainability
