Domestic Pleasures Or The Happy Fire Side Illustra:

Home Education in Historical Perspective Christina De Bellaigue, 2018-02-02 This book is the first publication to devote serious attention to the history of home education from the late eighteenth to the early twentieth century It brings together work by historians literary scholars and current practitioners who shed new light on the history of home schooling in the UK both as a practice and as a philosophy The six historical case studies point to the significance of domestic instruction in the past and uncover the ways in which changing family forms have affected understandings of the purpose form and content of education At the same time they uncover the ways in which families and individuals adapted to the expansion of formalised schooling The final article by philosopher and Elective Home Education practitioner and theorist Richard Davies uncovers the ways in which the historical analysis can illuminate our understanding of contemporary education As a whole the volume offers stimulating insights into the history of learning in the home and into the relationship between families and educational practice that raise new questions about the objectives form and content of education in the past and today This book was originally published as a special issue of the Oxford Review of Education
