Left to Our Own Devices Margaret E. Morris,2024-05-21 Unexpected ways that individuals adapt technology to reclaim what matters to them from working through conflict with smart lights to celebrating gender transition with selfies We have been warned about the psychological perils of technology distraction difficulty empathizing and loss of the ability or desire to carry on a conversation But our devices and data are woven into our lives We can t simply reject them Instead Margaret Morris argues we need to adapt technology creatively to our needs and values In Left to Our Own Devices Morris offers examples of individuals applying technologies in unexpected ways uses that go beyond those intended by developers and designers Morris examines these kinds of personalized life hacks chronicling the ways that people have adapted technology to strengthen social connection enhance well being and affirm identity Morris a clinical psychologist and app creator shows how people really use technology drawing on interviews she has conducted as well as computer science and psychology research She describes how a couple used smart lights to work through conflict how a woman persuaded herself to eat healthier foods when her photographs of salads garnered likes on social media how a trans woman celebrated her transition with selfies and how through augmented reality a woman changed the way she saw her cancer and herself These and the many other off label adaptations described by Morris cast technology not just as a temptation that we struggle to resist but as a potential ally as we try to take care of ourselves and others The stories Morris tells invite us to be more intentional and creative when left to our own devices
