Decentralization And Transition In The Visegrad:

Decentralization and Transition in the Visegrad E. Kirchner, 1999-05-17 The book assesses the democratization and marketization in the Visegrad states It analyses the effectiveness of these emerging government structures at a regional and local level in terms of competencies and resources makes comparisons with West European experiences at this level and examines the role of external factors especially the EU and international financial organisations in the development of sub national authorities in these countries

Social Service Reform in the Postcommunist State Janelle A. Kerlin, 2005-06-28 The fall of Communist regimes in Eastern Europe raised the complex question of how social services were to be distributed and administered in countries with legacies of highly centralized state In Poland a series of reforms attempted to modify and decentralize social service programs Yet with Poland's second round of decentralization long held and clearly specified reform goals were undermined from the very outset In this insightful detailed and carefully argued study Janelle A Kerlin demonstrates how and why reforms intended to improve services and increase citizen participation in social service programming largely failed to meet expected goals The politics of reform development including political deals exclusionary tactics and hidden maneuvering by Polish policymakers prevented any significant upgrade of services or real change in decision making structures Conflicting ideologies and pressures on policy actors stemming from historical institutional political and international sources often resulted in compromises that led to unfavorable public service outcomes In this book Kerlin uses focused interviews with leading reform actors and a nationwide representative survey of two hundred public social service institutions to develop a model that connects the politics of the decentralization process with social service outcomes Not only students of the former Soviet bloc but also those interested in the links between politics and policy outcomes more broadly will find in this volume an informative and instructive case study that has far reaching implications

Governing the Post-communist City Martin Horak, 2007-01-01 When faced with the rapid and disorienting transition from communism to democracy many eastern European leaders sought simple immediately rewarding answers to complex policy problems Undoubtedly this hurried approach had a significant impact on the quality of democratic government in formerly communist countries Through an analysis of urban politics in Prague between 1990 and 2000 Governing the Post Communist City sheds new light on the factors that shaped policy in eastern Europe at the time of its democratic transformation The first book length study of post communist urban politics in a city outside of Russia Governing the Post Communist City links the difficulties of democratic government in 1990s Prague to decisions made shortly after the fall of communism Focusing on the issues of road infrastructure and downtown development Martin Horak argues that local leadership was more concerned with insulating policy making processes from public influence than with creating new policies suited to post communist urban development This set a precedent for the whole institutional environment of post communist Prague and entrenched itself in the city's politics throughout the 1990s Original engaging and authoritative this study has much to say about the political climate in Prague after the downfall of communism and makes insightful conclusions about the factors that contributed to present political circumstances in the region

The Party Politics of Territorial Reforms in Europe Emanuele Massetti, Simon Toubeau, 2020-07-24 The book analyses how political parties compete and strategise on the issue of territorial reform using case studies that include countries from both Western Belgium Germany Italy and Spain and Central Eastern Europe Poland Slovakia and Romania Each case study considers different drivers of decentralization such as territorial identities and the demands of regionalist parties for territorial autonomy or independence efficiency concerns related to issues of uneven economic development and economic competitiveness the pressure from supra national organizations especially the EU as well as different combinations of these drivers They also consider how the ideology and organisation of state wide parties and the institutional context in which they compete shape their responses to these drivers and their strategy towards the question of territorial reform This collection investigates the logic of the actions that guide political parties strategy to highlight trends that are apparent across the case studies This book was originally published as a special issue of West European Politics

Serbia's Transition Milica Uvalic, 2010-05-26 The book provides a comprehensive evaluation of the achievements and failures of the transition to a market economy in Serbia and explains why the process has been more complex than in other parts of the former communist world and in many ways unique Milica Uvalic analyses 20 years of economic transition in Serbia Starting from Serbia s favorable initial conditions in 1989 while still part of Yugoslavia it proceeds to discuss the difficult 1990s characterized by high political and economic instability international isolation due to wars and sanctions and lack of fundamental economic reforms The post 2001 achievements and failures of the radically new course in transition taken after the end of the Milosevic regime are evaluated in great detail including macroeconomic performance institutional reforms integration with the European Union and the impact of the 2008 09 global economic crises Publisher
