Parker Peps to say so Mr Pilkins who from his position is best acquainted with the patient s constitution in its normal state an acquaintance very valuable to us in forming our opinions in these occasions is of opinion with me that Nature must be called upon to make a vigorous effort in this instance and that if our interesting friend the Countess of Dombey I beg your pardon Mrs Dombey should not be Able said the family practitioner To make said Doctor Parker Peps That effort said the family practitioner Successfully said they both together Then added Doctor Parker Peps alone and very gravely a crisis might arise which we should both sincerely deplore With that they stood for a few seconds looking at the ground Then on the motion made in dumb show of Doctor Parker Peps they went upstairs the family practitioner opening the room door for that distinguished professional and following him out with most obsequious politeness To record of Mr Dombey that he was not in his way affected by this intelligence would be to do him an injustice He was not a man of whom it could properly be said that he was ever startled or shocked but he certainly had a sense within him that if his wife should sicken and decay he would be very sorry and that he would find a something gone from among his plate and furniture and other household possessions which was well worth the having and could not be lost without sincere regret Though it would be a cool business like gentlemanly self possessed reg

Dombey and Son Charles Dickens, 2014-10-17 Dombey sat in the corner of the darkened room in the great arm chair by the bedside and Son lay tucked up warm in a little basket bedstead carefully disposed on a low settee immediately in front of the fire and close to it as if his constitution were analogous to that of a muffin and it was essential to toast him brown while he was very new Dombey was about eight and forty years of age Son about eight and forty minutes Dombey was rather bald rather red and though a handsome well made man too stern and pompous in appearance to be prepossessing Son was very bald and very red and though of course an undeniably fine infant somewhat crushed and spotty in his general effect as yet On the brow of Dombey Time and his brother Care had set some marks as on a tree that was to come down in good time remorseless twins they are for striding through their human forests notching as they go while the countenance of Son was crossed with a thousand little creases which the same deceitful Time would take delight in smoothing out and wearing away with the flat part of his scythe as a preparation of the surface for his deeper operations
