suffered an untimely death but he squeezed the most out of his 44 years of life Chekhov was a Russian physician dramatist and author who is considered to be one of the greatest writers in history particularly in the genre of short stories Chekhov's major innovation near the end of the 19th century was in what became known as stream of consciousness writing in which he eschewed common traditional story structure and simply wrote as though he was thinking aloud Renowned writers like James Joyce and William Faulkner would eventually run with this theme producing classics in the same vein Chekhov was one of Russia's most famous and popular writers in his time producing well received works like The Lady with the Dog and The Bishop

It was eight o'clock in the morning the time when the officers the local officials and the visitors usually took their morning dip in the sea after the hot stifling night and then went into the pavilion to drink tea or coffee Ivan Andreitch Laevsky a thin fair young man of twenty eight wearing the cap of a clerk in the Ministry of Finance and with slippers on his feet coming down to bathe found a number of acquaintances on the beach and among them his friend Samoylenko the army doctor With his big cropped head short neck his red face his big nose his shaggy black eyebrows and grey whiskers his stout puffy figure and his hoarse military bass this Samoylenko made on every newcomer the unpleasant impression of a gruff bully but two or three days after making his acquaintance one began to think his face extraordinarily good natured kind and even handsome In spite of his clumsiness and rough manner he was a peaceable man of infinite kindness and goodness of heart always ready to be of use He was on familiar terms with every one in the town lent every one money doctored every one made matches patched up quarrels arranged picnics at which he cooked shashlik and an awfully good soup of grey mullets He was always looking after other people's affairs and trying to interest some one on their behalf and was always delighted about something The general opinion about him was that he was without faults of character He had only two weaknesses he was ashamed of his own good nature and tried to disguise it by a surly expression and an assumed gruffness and he liked his assistants and his soldiers to call him Your Excellency although he was only a civil councillor Answer one question for me Alexandr Daviditch Laevsky began when both he and Samoylenko were in the water up to their shoulders Suppose you had loved a woman and had been living with her for two or three years and then left off caring for her as one does and began to feel that you had nothing in common with her How would you behave in that case It s very simple You go where you please madam and that would be the end of it It s easy to say that But if she has nowhere to go A woman with no friends or relations without a farthing who can t work Well Five hundred roubles down or an allowance of twenty five roubles a month and nothing more It s very simple
