in the Service of THE STATE

Roger J. P. Kain and Elizabeth Baigent

Charles S. Maier

The Cadastral Map in the Service of the State Roger J. P. Kain, Elizabeth Baigent, 1992 Throughout history the control of land has been the basis of political power Cadastral maps cartographic records of property ownership played an important role in the rise of modern Europe as tools for the consolidation and extension of land based national power The Cadastral Map in the Service of the State A History of Properly Mapping illustrated with 127 maps traces the development and application of rural property mapping in Europe and European colonies from the Renaissance through the nineteenth century The authors go beyond traditional cartographic research approaching the maps as political instruments rather than as simple geographical or historical tools The result is an unprecedented examination of the political and economic forces behind the production of maps and advances in cartography demonstrating how the seemingly neutral science of cartography became a political instrument for national interests Beginning with a review of the roots of cadastral mapping in the Roman Empire the authors concentrate on the use of cadastral maps in the Netherlands France England the Nordic countries the German lands the territories of the Austrian Habsburgs and the European colonies During the seventeenth century governments began to use maps to secure economic and political bases by the nineteenth century these maps had become tools for aggressive governmental control of land as tax bases natural resources and national territories The culmination of extensive bibliographic and archival research made possible by the authors considerable linguistic skills this work draws from source materials in ten languages and spanning five centuries It will remain the definitive source on the subject for years to come The Cadastral Map in the Service of the State was awarded the 1991 Kenneth Nebenzahl Prize for the best new manuscript in the history of cartography The Golden Age of Data Visualization Kim Marriott, 2024-09-04 We are living in the Golden Age of Data Visualization The COVID 19 pandemic has demonstrated how we increasingly use data visualizations to make sense of the world Business analysts fill their presentations with charts journalists use infographics to engage their readers we rely on the dials and gauges on our household appliances and we use mapping apps on our smartphones to find our way This book explains how and why this has happened It details the evolution of information graphics the kinds of graphics at the core of data visualization maps diagrams charts scientific and medical images from prehistory to the present day It explains how the cultural context production and presentation technologies and data availability have shaped the history of data visualization It considers the perceptual and cognitive reasons why data visualization is so effective and explores the little known world of tactile graphics raised line drawings used by people who are blind The book also investigates the way visualization has shaped our modern world The European Renaissance and the Scientific Revolution relied on maps and technical and scientific drawings and graphics influence how we think about abstract concepts like time and social connection This book is written for data visualization researchers and professionals and anyone interested in data visualization and the way we use graphics to understand and think about the world Once Within Borders Charles S.

Maier, 2016-10-17 At a time when the technologies of globalization are eroding barriers to communication transportation and trade Charles Maier explores the fitful evolution of territories politically bounded regions whose borders define the jurisdiction of laws and the movement of peoples as a worldwide practice of human societies Staging Authority Eva Giloi, Martin Kohlrausch, Heikki Lempa, Heidi Mehrkens, Philipp Nielsen, Kevin Rogan, 2022-10-24 Staging Authority Presentation and Power in Nineteenth Century Europe is a comprehensive handbook on how the presentation embodiment and performance of authority changed in the long nineteenth century. It focuses on the diversification of authority what new forms and expressions of authority arose in that critical century how traditional authority figures responded and adapted to those changes and how the public increasingly participated in constructing and validating authority It pays particular attention to how spaces were transformed to offer new possibilities for the presentation of authority and how the mediatization of presence affected traditional authority The handbook's fourteen chapters draw on innovative methodologies in cultural history and the aligned fields of the history of emotions urban geography persona studies gender studies media studies and sound studies State Formation through Emulation Chin-Hao Huang, David C. Kang, 2022-08-04 Neither war nor preparations for war were the cause or effect of state formation in East Asia Instead emulation of China the hegemon with a civilizational influence drove the rapid formation of centralized bureaucratically administered territorial governments in Korea Japan and Vietnam Furthermore these countries engaged in state building not to engage in conflict or to suppress revolt In fact war was relatively rare and there was no balance of power system with regular existential threats the longevity of the East Asian dynasties is evidence of both the peacefulness of their neighborhood and their internal stability We challenge the assumption that the European experience with war and state making was universal More importantly we broaden the scope of state formation in East Asia beyond the study of China itself and show how countries in the region interacted and learned from each other and China to develop strong capacities and stable borders Maps and History in South-West England Katherine Barker, 1991 This volume of essays considers the practical and political purposes for which maps were used the symbolic and ideological roles of maps in the history of South Western England and the ways in which map evidence can be used to recover facts about the past for use in the writing of history It is accompanied by 43 pages of The Nature of the State Mark Whitehead, Rhys maps and illustrations Cartographic Perspectives ,2007 Jones, Martin Jones, 2007-01-11 The twin categories of the state and nature collectively embody some of the most fundamental reference points around which our lives and thinking are organized Despite their combined significance however the complex relationships that exist between modern states and nature remain under theorized and are relatively unexplored Through a detailed study of different sites moments and framing strategies The Nature of the State challenges the ways in which geographers and social scientists approach the study of state nature relations. The authors analyse different instances of state nature interaction from all over the world considering the geo politics of resource conflicts the operation of natural history museums the organizational practices of environmental departments and ministries the regulation of genetic science and contemporary forms of state intervention within issues of climate change Introducing original research into the different institutional spatial and temporal strategies used by states to frame the natural world this book provides a critical overview of the latest political and ecological theories and addresses a wide range of pressing socio environmental debates

Sinclair, 2006 This is a book about power in small places its perceptions and realities where these conflict and where they come together Based on research conducted on Canada's Atlantic and Pacific coasts the chapters analyze the interaction of people and environment in coastal settings the way power operates now and how it has operated in the past The book covers a wide range of natural resource issues and people s responses to change It insists on a holistic perspective that recognizes the vital importance of social and ecological interconnectedness This work breaks old disciplinary constraints and mirrors the ways in which people the places in which they live and the culture that sustains them are a seamless whole This book is part of Coasts Under Stress a research project concerned with the impact of social and environmental restructuring on environmental and human health The project is an initiative between Memorial University of Newfoundland and the University of Victoria funded by SSHRC and NSERC Borneo Review ,1997 Archipelagic Identities Philip Schwyzer, Simon Mealor, 2004 The devolutionary shifts in British politics and the nature of British identity lead the contributors to this study to ask when and where was Britain The notion of an Atlantic Archipelago is unfamiliar yet it allows a fresh approach to literary criticism and the assimilation of external ideas from neighbours Subsistence and Economic Development Ronald E. Seavoy, 2000-08-30 Seavoy insists that development economics is a failed discipline because it does not recognize the revolutionary difference between subsistence and commercial social values Seavoy demonstrates that commercial labor norms are essential for producing assured food surpluses in all crop years and an assured food surplus is essential for sustaining the development process The commercialization of food production is a political process as in the term political economy If peasants have a choice they will not voluntarily perform commercial labor norms Central governments must overcome peasant resistance to performing commercial labor norms by various forms of coercion The most historically effective coercions are deprivation of peasant control of land use by foreclosure and eviction for excessive subsistence debts Landless peasants are forced to become supervised paid laborers Coercion is most effective when it is linked to money rewards for peasants who voluntarily transform themselves into yeomen cultivators or farmers These commercially motivated cultivators and storekeepers become the resident commercializing agents in peasant villages who administer the central government s coercive and inducement policies Based on extensive examples and field observation this book is designed for use in courses that explore problems of economic development Scholars and government policy makers will find the analysis equally provocative English Maps Catherine Delano-Smith,Roger J. Kain,1999 This is an introductory volume on the history of English maps The authors adopt the revisionist perspectives of the new history of cartography and review a broad range of maps ranging in date from about 700 AD to the beginning of the 20th century Their principle objective is to explore the ways in which maps have interacted with society in England s past to analyze the roles that maps have played and the uses to which they have been put Treasures from the Map Room Debbie Hall,2016 Travel and exploration Knowledge and science Pride and ownership Maps of war The city in maps Maps for fun Imaginary lands Contributors Territorialisation, Resistance and Democratic Spaces in Forested Landscapes of Orissa, India Kundan Kumar,2010
