Calcium And Phosphate Transport Across Biomembranes:

Calcium and Phosphate Transport Across Biomembranes Felix Bronner, 2012-12-02 Calcium and Phosphate Transport Across Biomembranes is a collection of papers presented at the 1981 Calcium and Phosphate Transport Across Biomembranes international workshop held in Vienna Austria Contributors from a wide range of disciplines explore the intracellular role of calcium and phosphate and their transport into and out of the body through the intestine and the kidney In particular they describe calcium movement in the cell and across the plasma membrane along with phosphate transport into the cell particularly at the brush border Organized into 10 sections encompassing 53 chapters this collection begins with an overview of the mechanisms underlying the net movements of calcium in the cell and plasma membrane The discussion then shifts to the crystal structure of calmodulin the phosphate transport in the mitochondria the mechanisms for calcium extrusion the calcium uptake by brush border membranes and the possible role of the mitochondria in intracellular calcium regulation The book also introduces the discussion on mitochondrial calcium transport protein polypeptide and amine hormone regulation of calcium fluxes mechanism of secretion by cultured pituitary cells and regulation of the tubular transport of phosphate A chapter that assesses the effects of vitamin D and insulin on phosphate transport in the differentiating chick small intestine concludes the book This collection of papers will be of interest to scientists neurochemists physiologists pharmacologists biochemists gastroenterologists nutritionists and pathophysiologists

International Workshop on Calcium and Phosphate Transport across Biomembranes, 1981 The Enzymes of Biological Membranes Anthony Martonosi, 2012-12-06 In the first edition of The Enzymes of Biological Membranes published in four volumes in 1976 we collected the mass of widely scattered information on membrane linked enzymes and metabolic processes up to about 1975 This was a period of transition from the romantic phase of membrane biochemistry preoccupied with conceptual developments and the general properties of membranes to an era of mounting interest in the specific properties of membrane linked enzymes analyzed from the viewpoints of modern enzymology The level of sophistication in various areas of membrane research varied widely the structures of cytochrome c and cytochrome b were known to atomic detail while the majority of membrane linked enzymes had not even been isolated In the intervening eight years our knowledge of membrane linked enzymes expanded beyond the wildest expectations The purpose of the second edition of The Enzymes of Biological Membranes is to record these developments The first volume describes the physical and chemical techniques used in the analysis of the structure and dynamics of biological membranes In the second volume the enzymes and metabolic systems that participate in the biosynthesis of cell and membrane components are discussed The third and fourth volumes review recent developments in active transport oxidative phosphorylation and photosynthesis Calcium and Phosphate Transport Across Biomembranes Meinrad Peterlik, Felix Bronner, 1980 Current Catalog National Frizzell,1991 Intracellular Calcium Regulation Felix Bronner,1990-03 Intracellular Calcium Regulation Editor Felix Bronner A notable development in biological research is the recent widespread interest in the role played by calcium in cellular metabolism Calcium homeostasis has been studied intensively for many years and mechanisms by which calcium absorption excretion and bone deposition are effected and regulated are beginning to be understood in detail It now appears there may exist a parallel between the maintenance and regulation of intracellular and extracellular calcium This volume presents up to date information on intracellular calcium regulation and thus provides a foundation for studies that aim to explore the relationship between intracellular and extracellular calcium metabolism Intracellular Calcium Regulation examines in detail what happens to calcium inside the cell and offers authoritative discussions on such topics as calcium fluxes defining the role played by the plasma membrane in regulating the cellular calcium level the application of tracer techniques to an analysis of the cellular calcium pool the compartments making up the pool and the rates of exchange between compartments processes of calcium entry into the cell describing entry into cells that do not fire action potentials as well as three types of voltage sensitive calcium channels including their distribution pharmacology molecular properties and modulation organelles such as the endoplasmic reticulum the Golgi complex lysosomes or mitochondria and their role in regulating intracellular calcium levels the new exciting field of calcium binding or calcium modulated proteins such as troponin C parvalbumin S 100 proteins calbindins and calmodulin as well as some novel calcium binding proteins like the 42C and 42A proteins calcyclin and caltractin calcium efflux analyzing the role and function of the plasma membrane calcium pump and the Na Ca² exchanger including the kinetics of ATP hydrolysis how calcium transport and ATP hydrolysis are linked the kinetics and properties of the sodium calcium exchange its regulation and role in such specialized cells as retinal rods and cardiac myocytes calcium transport as carried out by resting stimulated and excitable cells with emphasis on activated phospholipase C involvement of the G proteins and protein kinase C calcium transport as carried out by the specialized transport cells of intestine and kidney entry via calcium channels intracellular diffusion as facilitated by the calcium binding proteins and extrusion via the Ca ATPase Intracellular Calcium Regulation will be of interest to researchers and graduate students in the areas of biochemistry biophysics cell biology nutrition gastroenterology nephrology and anatomy EAAP publication ,1978 Drug Treatment of Heart Failure Jay N.
