Cadillac Of Destroyers Hmcs St Laurent And Her Successors:

Cadillac of Destroyers Ron Barrie, Ken Macpherson, 1996 HMCS St Laurent was the Navy's first postwar antisubmarine vessel designed and built entirely in Canada commissioned in 1955. Classed as a destroyer escort, she was the most advanced of her kind and caused a considerable stir in world naval circles. She was the first of twenty very similar ships whose sleek lines quickly earned them the nickname Cadillacs. These ships were followed in the 1970s by the different looking Iroquois class of destroyer helicopter carriers and since 1992 by the ultramodern City class patrol frigates. The development and careers of each of these classes of ships is illustrated with before and after photographs of the many whose appearance has been altered by rebuilding. Guardians of the North Richard H. Gimblett, Karl Gagnon, 2025-12-09 A comprehensive fully illustrated survey of Canada's warship and maritime aircraft acquisitions from 1910 to the present day. Combining the talents of two of Canada's foremost naval historians, this book fills an important void in the story of the Royal Canadian Navy (RCN) and associated Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF) Maritime Aviation. An unprecedented chronological examination of when and why Canada procured its some fifty classes of warships and a dozen aircraft types over the past 120 years and how it has employed and disposed of them. Guardians of the North does more than collect statistics on the specifications and characteristics of those vessels and aircraft; it also offers fresh insights into many previously overlooked themes, revealing trends and connections over the decades to the present day. Karl Gagnon's exceptional profile drawings and many rarely seen images complement Richard Gimblett's engaging narrative history of the RCN and Maritime Aviation, making this the defining work on the ships and aircraft defending Canada today.
