Cahokia Mirror Of The Cosmos:

Cahokia Sally A. Kitt Chappell, 2002-02-15 At the turn of the last millennium a powerful Native American civilization emerged and flourished in the American Midwest By A D 1050 the population of its capital city Cahokia was larger than that of London Without the use of the wheel beasts of burden or metallurgy its technology was of the Stone Age yet its culture fostered widespread commerce refined artistic expression and monumental architecture The model for this urbane world was nothing less than the cosmos itself The climax of their ritual center was a four tiered pyramid covering fourteen acre rising a hundred feet into the sky the tallest structure in the United States until 1867 This beautifully illustrated book traces the history of this six square mile area in the central Mississippi Valley from the Big Bang to the present Chappell seeks to answer fundamental questions about this unique yet still relatively unknown space which was designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1982 How did this swampy land become so amenable to human life Who were the remarkable people who lived here before the Europeans came Why did the whole civilization disappear so rapidly What became of the land in the centuries after the Mississippians abandoned it And finally what can we learn about ourselves as we look into the changing meaning of Cahokia through the ages To explore these questions Chappell probes a wide range of sources including the work of astronomers geographers geologists anthropologists and archaeologists Archival photographs and newspaper accounts as well as interviews with those who work at the site and Native Americans on their annual pilgrimage to the site bring the story up to the present Tying together these many threads Chappell weaves a rich tale of how different people conferred their values on the same piece of land and how the transformed landscape in turn inspired different values in them cultural spiritual agricultural economic and humanistic

Archaeologies of Cosmoscapes in the Americas J. Grant Stauffer, Bretton T. Giles, Shawn P. Lambert, 2022-09-08 This volume examines how pre Columbian societies in the Americas envisioned their cosmos and iteratively modeled it through the creation of particular objects and places It emphasizes that American societies did this to materialize overarching models and templates for the shape and scope of the cosmos the working definition of cosmocape Noting a tendency to gloss over the ways in which ancestral Americans envisioned the cosmos as intertwined and animated the authors examine how cosmoscapes are manifested archaeologically in the forms of objects and physically altered landscapes This book s chapters therefore offer case studies of cosmoscapes that present themselves as forms of architecture portable artifacts and transformed aspects of the natural world In doing so it emphasizes that the creation of cosmoscapes offered a means of reconciling peoples experiences of the world with their understandings of them America Before Graham
