Integrating Artificial and Human Intelligence through Agent Oriented Systems Design Michael E. Miller, Christina F. Rusnock, 2024-08-28

This book departs from the assumption that Artificial Intelligence (AI) systems will provide a maximum advantage by replacing human cognitive processing. Instead, this book subscribes to the assumption that AI systems will provide a maximal advantage when the system is specifically designed to augment human intelligence. It provides methods for designing effective systems that include one or more humans and one or more AI entities and uses the approach that assumes automation does not replace human activity but fundamentally changes the structure of human work when AI is added to existing systems.

Integrating Artificial and Human Intelligence through Agent Oriented Systems Design discusses the potential impact of AI on human work and life and explores why teamwork is necessary today for complex work environments. The book explains the processes and methods humans employ to effectively team with one another and presents the elements of artificial agents that permit them to function as team members in joint human and artificial teams. It discusses design goals and illustrates how the methods that have been used to model the complex interactions among human and artificial agents can be expanded to enable the design of interaction between them to make possible the attainment of the shared goals.

Model Based Systems Engineering (MBSE) tools that provide logical designs of human agent teams, the AI within these teams, training to be deployed for human and artificial agent team members, and the interfaces between human and artificial agent team members are all covered. MBSE files containing profiles and examples for building MBSE models used in the design approach are featured on the author's website: <https://lodesterreosci.com>.

This book is an ideal read for students, professors, engineers, and project managers associated with designing and developing AI systems or systems that seek to incorporate AI.

Unfinished Business: A Regional Education Laboratory Retrospective on School Improvement is authored by education professionals formerly employed at SERVE, one of the ten US federally funded education research and development laboratories. SERVE's region included the following southeastern states: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, and South Carolina. The school improvement recollections found in this book are supported by contemporaneous data collected for research and evaluation as well as literature, interviews, and evidence from former clients and collaborators. Each of the chapter authors wrote about a school improvement initiative in which they led or participated in developing. Compared to the other nine labs

SERVE was heavily field based SERVE's projects and publications focused on school improvement research policy and professional development The work was typically launched in a spirit best described as emergent design Building on extant research and best practice potential clients across the six state region were approached with ideas for educational interventions and evidence to support theories of action It is underscored that improving America's public schools teachers and school administrators is a continuous process involving difficult work It is hoped that this book will offer suggestions to educators about how to implement school improvement including what works and what doesn't and how initiatives can evolve positively over time

ENDORSEMENTS This retrospective on the work done by the SERVE lab serves to underscore the important role education laboratories can play in helping schools improve the systems and processes supporting more equitable learning opportunities and higher student achievement As the authors indicate the work of school improvement is never finished hence it follows that continually trying out well grounded interventions and examining their impacts on leadership teaching and learning is essential to moving improvement science forward
