Dangerously Covert Lee Nylen, 2004-11-01 It wasn't known what happened at Camp Dubois or Camp Wood River until Captain William Clark's notes were discovered in 1953 in St Paul Minnesota in an attic and covered with dust Now we have some idea from these notes While not a complete record it does indicate what the Captains Lewis and Clark felt they had to do to bring the party into a complete military and functioning unit The importance of the five plus months spent here and around the Alton Wood River and Hartford area was an opportunity for the Captains to observe test and determine who in their minds would be best suited for such an undertaking as the expedition that President Jefferson wanted them to complete For the most part this responsibility fell onto Captain Clark as Captain Lewis was busy with details and collection of needed maps and necessary items in St Louis and Cahokia Little is mentioned in these lately founded notes of the activities that pertained to the preparing for the journey ahead Such as parching corn rendered fat into tallow and lard the packing of powder and shot and making of sugar from the sap of area maple trees As tough as these young men were each had skills to learn and learned skills to teach others At Camp Dubois the training camp or whipping into shape began These men lived together slept together fought and drank together There were fights and misconduct as well as punishments handed down by not only the Captains but by the men themselves They learned who could be depended on and whom they couldn't In other words what they learned was to SURVIVE They learned that in order to do that they had to do it together What they learned at Camp Dubois stayed with them to the Pacific Ocean and back to St Louis

The Tempter's Voice Eric Jager, 2018-07-05 Why was the story of Adam Eve and the Serpent so important to medieval literary culture Eric Jager argues that during the Middle Ages the story of the Fall was incorporated into a comprehensive myth about language Drawing on a wide range of texts Jager shows how patristic and medieval authors used the Fall to confront practical and theoretical problems in many areas of life and thought including education hermeneutics rhetoric feudal politics and gender relations Jager explores the Fall's meaning for clergy and laity nobles and commoners men and women Among the works Jager discusses are texts by Ambrose Augustine the early Christian poet Avitus and scholastic authors Old English biblical epics Middle English spiritual writings French courtesy books and the poetry of Dante and Chaucer Examples from the visual arts are included as well Jager links medieval interpretations of the Fall to underlying cultural anxieties about the ambiguity of the sign the instability of oral tradition the pleasure of the text and the many rhetorical guises of the tempter's voice He also assesses the modern and postmodern legacy of the Fall showing how this myth continues to embody central ideas concerning language The Tempter's Voice will be essential reading for scholars and students in such fields as medieval studies literary theory gender theory comparative literature cultural history and the history of religion

Phenomenology and Beyond: The Self and Its Language H.A. Durfee, David F.T. Rodier, 2012-12-06 It has been a constant intention of the series of AMERICAN UNIVERSITY PUBLICATIONS IN PHILOSOPHY to present to the philosophical reader books which probed the frontiers of contemporary philosophy That intention remains true of the following volume which offers an international dialogue regarding the phenomenological program and succeeding movements Early in this Series we tried as well to initiate philosophical discussion across serious boundaries and barriers which have characterized contemporary reflection That theme also continued in the original essays presented herein With the publication of this fifth volume in the Series we have crossed something of a minor milestone in our endeavor and are appreciative of the kind welcome with which we have been received by the readers We wish to thank sincerely the contributors to this volume for their helpful and willing cooperation We also wish to thank Ms Irmgard Scherer for her translation of Professor Apel s paper as well as Professor Apel himself for reviewing this translation We are also pleased to thank the Office of the Dean of the College Of Arts And Sciences and especially Dean Betty T Bennett for a grant for typing as well as Ms Mary H Wason for her fine typing skills and her kind cooperation

The Palgrave Handbook of Innovative Community and Clinical Psychologies Carl Walker, Sally Zlotowitz, Anna Zoli, 2022-02-01 This handbook highlights a range of ground breaking radical and liberatory clinical and critical community psychology projects from around the world The disciplines of critical community psychology and clinical psychology are currently experiencing radical innovations that in this book are characterised as moving from the individualising practice realm toward an altogether more contextualising orientation Both fields are responding to an array of political social and economic injustices and a global political context Community and clinical psychologists have found themselves reorienting their practice to confront resist and subvert the structures that are so damaging to the lives of the vulnerable people they work with This text posits that these approaches refute and resist the psychologising that has strengthened oppressive structures Such practices are starting to engage in the political character of power knowledge relationships that demand a more action oriented and less clinical psychology praxis and there is a growing interest in and commitment to social justice in the field of mental wellbeing Using examples of scholar activist and practitioner work from around the world this collection explores and documents those practices where the traditional remits of community and clinical psychology have been subverted altered stretched changed and reworked in order to reframe practice around human rights creativity political activism social change space and place systemic violence community transformation resource allocation and radical practices of disruption and direct action
