Debate On Higher Education:

Financing Higher Education Howard Rothmann Bowen,1974 The Academic Bill of Rights Debate Stephen H. Aby,2007-08-30 The Academic Bill of Rights was introduced in 2003 after two decades of conservative critiques of higher education and its faculty Its goal was to generate legislative initiatives to rein in the tenured radicals who were allegedly dominating higher education and infringing on the academic freedom rights of conservative students At its root the debate revolves around some core questions who should teach and who has the knowledge and training to hire and evaluate faculty what knowledge should be taught and most fundamentally who should make these decisions Should it be trained faculty who are specialists in their fields and who were hired to teach and advance knowledge Or should it be politicians or outsiders who may be empowered by legislation to interfere in academic decisions The academic freedom of faculty and the independence of higher education depends on the answers to these questions This book is the first to bring together a variety of critiques of the Academic Bill of Rights Furthermore by including some works by David Horowitz and his critics as well as websites and a bibliography reflecting various points of view it gives life to the debate showing some of the give and take of the arguments This collection also presents the background on the historical context of academic freedom showing its fragility and therefore the importance of preserving it Also featured are some core documents such as the AAUP s 1940 Statement of Principles on Academic Freedom and Tenure that are central to the debates Some of the conservative critiques of higher education are identified in the selective annotated bibliography chapter And case studies of how the ABOR was contested in three states where it was introduced as legislation are also included Finally this book attempts to refocus concerns about higher education on the real issue its growing domination by corporate values and interests converting higher education from a public good into an increasingly private commodity The Changing Face of Higher Education Dennis Ahlburg,2018-07-04 Over the last decade a heated debate has raged in the US and the UK over whether the humanities are in crisis and if there is one what form this crisis takes and what the response should be Questioning how there can be such disagreement over a fundamental point The Changing Face of Higher Education explores this debate asking whether the humanities are in crisis after all by objectively evaluating the evidence at hand and opening the debate up to a global scale by applying the questions to twelve countries from different continents Each carefully chosen contributor considers the debate from the perspective of a different country The chapters present data on funding student enrolment in the humanities whether the share of total enrolment in this area is falling and answer the following questions What does each country mean by the humanities Is there a crisis in the humanities in this country What are the causes for the crisis What are the implications for the humanities disciplines Uniquely offering an objective evaluation of whether this crisis exists the book will appeal to international humanities and higher education communities and policy makers including postgraduate students and academics The Value of Higher Education ,2003 Education for Democracy Gail Kennedy,1952 The Debate on Higher Education

Adrian Seville, James Tooley, 1997 Higher Education in the UK is at a crucial juncture in its history Its funding is in crisis and morale amongst students and academics perilously low This monograph offers two contributions to the debate Like many of the nationalised industries of old producer driven higher education suffers from inefficiencies and lack of responsiveness to its consumers Adrian Seville shows how modularisation the introduction of quasi markets in higher education could ameliorate some of these problems His paper explores fundamental issues and challenges whether the current quality control mechanism in higher education can be considered satisfactory even in a traditional university setting let alone when modularisation is introduced Tooley s contribution takes the debate a step further The suggestion of quasi markets in higher education begs the question as to why not genuine markets Hence he examines the fundamental assumption which remains unchallenged in much of the current debate why should government be involved in higher education at all He looks at the major justifications given for government intervention and finds each wanting Government is not needed to make higher education opportunities available Indeed there are negative effects of such intervention including qualification inflation Finally the desirable goal of equity in terms of access to higher learning only needs the minimal intervention of private income contingent loans for tuition and maintenance not the gamut of interference with which we are familiar

The Future of American Higher Education Joseph L. DeVitis, 2023-07-03 This impressive anthology presents the reader with an introduction to a gallery of public intellectuals through the critical eyes of a wide array of contributing writers from various academic fields Both the latter and the public intellectuals themselves are responding to the state of American higher education Importantly most of them there are a few public intellectuals in the book who cling closer to the status quo do not separate colleges and universities from the political economic and social currents of American society They attack the realities of growing social inequality the intractable presence of institutional racism and the recurrent reliance on the free market as the arbiter of value Public intellectuals assess the impact of these social factors on the organization and practices of contemporary American higher education They force the reader to consider serious challenges to the current arrangement of higher learning and as such they ask us to assess the efficacy of their respective perspectives Do they present the reader with insight or idealism pathways or dead ends This compendium provides an abundance of ideas for higher education leaders policy makers faculty members trustees and governmental officials as well as social theorists and graduate students interested in higher education careers Richard Guarasci President Emeritus of Wagner College Just as our society is polarized higher education is no less divided as to its mission and purpose whether it should be preparing students for employment or for engagement as citizens whether it should be corporatist and profit driven or promote intellectual curiosity and independent thinking and whether it should pursue a neoliberal agenda or promote a liberal education Whose scholarship culture and epistemologies should be validated Should it be a private or a public good Preserve tenure or erode it What role should colleges and universities play in addressing economic inequality and systemic racism The answers to these questions are critical for the future of our society as our universities and colleges are the nurseries of the values and philosophies that shape it The chapters in this book review the contributions of seventeen public intellectuals who have been at the forefront of these issues and significantly contributed to these debates Each describes the genesis of each scholar s ideas and presents and critiques his or her core insights and arguments The seventeen public intellectuals represent a spectrum of opinion from the conservative to the progressive At this pivotal moment when much of higher education is in economic crisis and public trust in it has been eroded this book offers a robust entry point for considering the options and directions ahead for anyone in a leadership position The book will also be valuable for higher education courses to stimulate debate about these critical issues and introduce readers to the seminal thinkers in the field Public Intellectuals Presented Stanley Aronowitz Michael B rub Marc Bousquet Patricia Hill Collins Lori Patton Davis William Deresiewicz Stanley Fish Marybeth Gasman Henry Giroux Sara Goldrick Rabb Amy Gutmann Russell Jacoby Randall Kennedy David Kirp David F Labaree Christopher Newfield Michael Roth

Refugees in Higher Education Jacqueline Stevenson, Sally Baker, 2018-10-15 This book provides a critical appraisal of the participation of students from refugee backgrounds in higher education exploring how global discourses about forced migration play out for students in terms of accessing participating and succeeding in higher education The Future of Crisis in the Academy Christopher J. Lucas, 1998-03-15 Not since student turmoil and unrest wreaked havoc on the nation s campuses three decades ago has American higher education been the subject of so much controversy and popular criticism Countless indictments compete for the public's attention as critics explore vital issues confronting today's institutions of higher learning curricular fragmentation declining academic standards the apparent erosion of liberal learning within academe widespread neglect of undergraduate education in favour of academic research and unprecedented financial woes Confusion over fundamental priorities and purposes the author argues lies at the heart of the dilemma facing end of the century higher education Thoughtful and timely Crisis in the Academy offers a wide ranging analysis of contemporary higher education while making an important contribution to the ongoing public debate over the future of America's beleaguered and diverse institutions of higher learning Exploring The Heritage Of American Higher Education Grady E.

Bogue, Jeffery Aper, 2000 University administrators faculty and students of higher education will find this volume an exceptional resource for understanding the history and politics behind U.S. higher education Unique in their presentation the authors address the policies debates and criticism that have shaped higher education Trends in Higher Education, 2004

Repositioning Higher Education Frank Coffield, Bill Williamson, 1997 Higher education faces a new century with many contradictions still unresolved Elitist models of universities coexist with mass higher education in an increasingly divided society Academic autonomy has been eroded and the creative independence of institutions is at a premium New technology challenges profoundly the organization of academic life Educational values struggle with those of training The writers in this book envisage a system of higher education fit for the new millennium They challenge the fatalism of much current thinking about mass higher education and identify the ways universities must take the initiative in defining radically different models of their futures They look to universities which are accessible accountable and growing steadily with adequate resources They envisage institutions which promote democratic values offer high quality lifelong learning opportunities and are based on a new contract with and vision for the society they serve Repositioning Higher Education develops a powerful critique of current orthodoxies in higher education and will provoke further open debate about the role of higher education in modern society

The WTO and the University Roberta Malee Bassett, 2006 By and large the debate about the merits of including higher education services within free trade policies has occurred outside of the United States even though the U.S. Office of the Trade Representative has specifically included higher education services in its March 2003 negotiating offer to the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS This book emerged from research and conversations on the potential implications of free trade on American higher education implications which have yet to lead to any real conversation or debate within the broad higher education community in the United States It fills a niche in the literature on trade and higher education services by providing context and analysis of the trade issue in the American higher education context as well as the pros and cons of free trade in higher education services from the perspectives of the U.S. based actors The Debate Review Mid-west Debate Bureau, 1959 How to Debate Federal Aid for Higher Education Joseph Schwartz (writer on debating.), 1956* Thematic Debate Unesco.
