Policy Studies: Review Annual Bruce B. Zellner, 2019-01-22

Every editor of the Policy Studies Review Annual brings a unique perspective to bear in selecting articles to be included This perspective reflects varying methodological and disciplinary judgments varying judgments on what the field of policy studies or policy analysis is and where it should be going and varying judgments regarding the quality of articles which are or claim to be in the field Because it is the objective to assemble a set of essays which are both interesting and topical there will be varying perspectives on these matters as well The volume clearly reflects the editors perspectives They are explicit about these judgments and perspectives and then let the content of the volume speak for itself First we are both economists As a result the general topics selected and the articles chosen under each topic tend to emphasize economics more than the other disciplines involved in the field of policy studies sociology psychology political science law and so on This emphasis is clearly seen by comparing the contents of volume I edited by Stuart Nagel a political scientist and volume II edited by Howard Freeman a sociologist with that of this volume Second the editors have a particular view of what policy studies or policy analysis is That view has several aspects In the first place they feel that the field of policy studies or policy analysis must define itself and this definition will develop as researchers do just what the title of the field says study or analyze policies A corollary of this view is that we place a low weight on papers which discuss the policy process or reforms in policy making relative to papers which analyze a policy a policy proposal or a problem which leads to calls for policy action

Operations Research H. A. Eiselt, Carl-Louis

Sandblom, 2010-12-02 Since the 1960s operations research or alternatively management science has become an indispensable tool in scientific management In simple words its goal on the strategic and tactical levels is to aid in decision making and on the operational level automate decision making Its tools are algorithms procedures that create and improve solutions to a point at which optimal or at least satisfactory solutions have been found While many texts on the subject emphasize methods the special focus of this book is on the applications of operations research in practice Typically a topic is introduced by means of a description of its applications a model is formulated and its solution is presented Then the solution is discussed and its implications for decision making are outlined We have attempted to maximize the understanding of the topics by using intuitive reasoning while keeping mathematical notation and the description of techniques to a minimum The exercises are designed to fully explore the material covered in the chapters without resorting to mind numbing repetitions and trivialization Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1971-10
