Altmetrics for Information Professionals Kim Johan Holmberg, 2015-09-03 The goal of any research assessment is to evaluate the value or quality of the research in comparison to other research. As quality is highly subjective and difficult to measure, citations are used as a proxy. Citations are an important part of scholarly communication and a significant component of research evaluation with the assumption being that highly cited work has influenced the work of many other researchers and hence it is more valuable. Recently we have seen new online data sources being researched for this purpose and disruptive ideas with the power to change research assessment and perhaps even science as a whole have been born. Altmetrics is the new research area that investigates the potential of these new data source as indicators of the impact that research has made on the scientific community and beyond and thus possibly also as indicators of the societal impact of research. This book will present some of these new data sources, findings from earlier altmetrics research and the disruptive ideas that may radically change scholarly communication. Presents some of the key ideas and innovations in earlier research that have been driving the evolution from bibliometrics to webometrics and with the advent of social media to altmetrics. Discusses the shortcomings and pitfalls of bibliometrics in research evaluation and the potential of altmetrics to overcome some of these shortcomings. Presents some of the most important data sources of altmetrics, the aggregators and the different stakeholders. Reviews current research about altmetrics and discusses possible future trends. Presents a way to measure and aggregate altmetrics according to the level of impact or type of impact they represent.

Social Media and Election Campaigns Gunn Enli, Hallvard Moe, 2017-10-02. This book aims to further the research in the fields of social media and political communication by moving beyond the hype and avoiding the most eye catching and spectacular cases. It looks at stable democracies without current political turmoil, small countries as well as large continents and minor political parties as well as major ones. Investigating emerging practices in the United States, Europe and Australia both on national and local levels enables us to grasp contemporary tendencies across different regions and countries. The book provides empirical insights into the diverse uses of different social media for political communication in different societies. Contributors look at the ways in which novel arenas connect with other channels for political communication and how politicians as well as citizens in general use social media services. Presenting state of the art methodological approaches drawing on a combination of qualitative and quantitative analyses, the book brings together an interdisciplinary group of researchers in order to address emerging practices of the mediation of politics, campaign communication and issues of citizenship and democracy as expressed on social media platforms. This book was originally published as a special issue of Information Communication Society.
