Negotiating Trade Liberalization in Argentina and Chile Andrea C. Bianculli, 2016-12-08 How do international negotiations affect domestic politics Starting in the 1990s countries throughout Latin America embarked on many and simultaneous negotiations On the shifting ground of widening and deepening trade agendas and diverse arenas what factors determined trade politics This book examines the domestic political dynamics triggered by South South North South and multilateral agendas in Argentina and Chile between 1990 and 2005 Using a much needed cross negotiation and cross country comparative perspectives and through detailed empirical analyses of several key negotiations it proposes an explanation that emphasizes the interplay between international negotiations and domestic trade politics taken as the result of the complex and dynamic interdependencies and interrelations between state and society Informed by interviews with public officials businesses and civil society the analysis reveals that variation in the depth of agendas the distributional effects and the uncertainty of political outcomes all have important consequences for domestic preference formation collective action strategies and types of relationships Given this the variety of negotiations when considered separately and comparatively show that South South North South and multilateral processes promote different patterns of trade politics In sum although national specificities and historical legacies are important the book argues that trade policy comes first in creating domestic politics in Latin America

Thomas Risse, Ursula Lehmkuhl, 2007 Multi-level Governance in the European Union Thomas

Conzelmann, 2008 In recent years the debate on the future institutional shape of the European Union has centred on the Constitutional Treaty and the Lisbon Treaty as its less ambitious but possibly equally abortive successor The debate has thus neglected the emergence of a wide variety of new and multi level forms of governing The present volume takes stock of these debates and asks critical questions about policy conflicts and the effectiveness and legitimacy of these forms of governance Under what conditions can they stand up to the high expectations that are put in them by their supporters The volume offers reflections on the notion of network governance Multi Level Governance and the difficult issue of democratic accountability as well as empirical case studies from the structural funds area as well as from environmental policy broadly conceived
