Decommissioning Michele Laraia, 2012-02-21 Once a nuclear installation has reached the end of its safe and economical operational lifetime the need for its decommissioning arises Different strategies can be employed for nuclear decommissioning based on the evaluation of particular hazards and their attendant risks as well as on the analysis of costs of clean up and waste management This allows for decommissioning either soon after permanent shutdown or perhaps a long time later the latter course allowing for radioactivity levels to drop in any activated or contaminated components It is crucial for clear processes and best practices to be applied in decommissioning such installations and sites particular where any significant health and environmental risks exist This book critically reviews the nuclear decommissioning processes and technologies applicable to nuclear power plants and other civilian nuclear facilities Part one focuses on the fundamental planning issues in starting a nuclear decommissioning process from principles and safety regulations to financing and project management Part two covers the execution phase of nuclear decommissioning projects detailing processes and technologies such as dismantling decontamination and radioactive waste management as well as environmental remediation site clearance and reuse Finally part three details international experience in the decommissioning of nuclear applications including the main nuclear reactor types and nuclear fuel cycle facilities as well as small nuclear facilities and legacy nuclear waste sites Critically reviews nuclear decommissioning processes and technologies applicable to nuclear power plants and other civilian nuclear facilities Discusses the fundamental planning issues in starting a nuclear decommissioning process Considers the execution phase of nuclear decommissioning projects including dismantling decontamination and radioactive waste management as well as environmental remediation site clearance and reuse

Beyond Decommissioning M Laraia,2019-06-08 Beyond Decommissioning The Reuse and Redevelopment of Nuclear Installations presents the most up to date research and guidance on the reuse and redevelopment of nuclear plants and sites Consultant Michele Laraia extensively builds upon experience from the redevelopment of non nuclear industrial sites a technical field that has considerably predated nuclear applications to help the reader gain a very thorough and practical understanding of the redevelopment opportunities for decommissioned nuclear sites Laraia emphasizes the socioeconomic and financial benefits from very early planning for site reuse including how to manage the decommissioning transition anticipate financial issues and effectively utilize available resources With an increasing number of decommissioning projects being conducted worldwide it is critical that knowledge gained by experts with hands on experience is passed on to the younger generation of nuclear professionals Besides this book describes the experiences of non nuclear organizations that have reutilized the human financial and physical site assets with adaptations for a new productive mission making it a key reference for all parties associated with nuclear operation and decommissioning Those responsible for nuclear operation and decommissioning are encouraged to incorporate site reuse within an integrated beginning to end view of their projects The book also appeals to nuclear regulators as it highlights more opportunities to complete nuclear decommissioning safely speedily and in the best interests of all concerned parties

The Independent Verification Process in Decommissioning, Decontamination, and Reutilization Activities - Description, Benefits, and Lessons Learned ,1997 Oak Ridge National Laboratory Environmental Technology Section has been performing Independent Verification IV activities for U S DOE sites since 1986 DOE has successfully used IV in the Uranium Mill Tailings Remedial Action Program Decontamination and Decommissioning projects and Formerly Utilized Sites Remedial Action Projects Surplus Facilities Management Program Projects that have undergone IV range from small residential properties to large industrial sites The IV process provides a third party review conducted by an independent organization The purpose is to verify accuracy and completeness of contractor field measurements and final documentation evaluate the credibility of procedures and independently assess post cleanup conditions versus decommissioning project plans and release criteria Document reviews of plans dose models procedures and reports are some IV activities undertaken Independent measurements are also collected during field visits to confirm the contractor s findings Corrective actions for discrepancies are suggested if necessary Finally archival and reporting of the final site environmental conditions for project closeout and certification are completed The IV contractor reports to DOE headquarters and acts as a quality assurance feedback mechanism An IV also provides additional assurance that projects are planned carried out and documented properly Decommissioning projects benefit from the IV process by 1 cost and time savings from early identification of potential problems 2 assurance that cleanup meets regulatory guidelines and 3 technical reviews and consultation with experts in field instrumentation sampling strategy etc Some lessons learned from the IV process include avoiding 1 improper survey techniques 2 reporting data in units not comparable with guideline values 3 premature release of surfaces 4 poor decommissioning project planning 5 misapplication of release guidelines 20 refs

Decontamination and Decommissioning of Nuclear Facilities Marilyn M. Osterhout, 2012-12-06 This volume contains the invited and contributed papers presented at the American Nuclear Society ANS meeting on Decontamination and Decommissioning of Nuclear Facilities held September 16-20 1979 in Sun Valley Idaho This was the first U S meeting of the ANS which addressed both of these important and related subjects The meeting was attended by more than 400 engineers scientists laymen and representatives of federal state and local governments including participants from eleven foreign countries The technical sessions included several sessions concentrating on ongoing D D programs in the U S and abroad In addition new ground was broken in such areas as decommissioning costs and cost recovery advanced programs on reactor coolant filtration and other areas of continuing and increasing importance to the nuclear industry and to consumers The dual sponsorship of the meeting The ANS Reactor Operations Division and the Eastern Idaho Section of the ANS helped spur a high quality program a pleasant location and a high degree of success in technical interchange between the attendees As guest speaker we were honored to have Mr Vince Boyer of Philadelphia Electric Company Mr Boyer is both a past chairman of the ANS Reactor Operations Division and a past president of the American Nuclear Society His views on the nuclear industry and of its current status were informative and interesting

Experiences in Decontamination & Decommissioning (D & D) of Former Plutonium Production Reactors at the Hanford Reservation ,2003 Nine nuclear reactors were built at the Hanford reservation for plutonium production from 1943 to 1964 Eight of the reactors were shutdown by 1971 and the last in early 1987 Since then disposition of the reactors has been incorporated into the Hanford cleanup program The objective is to transition the reactors from their existing state of minimal maintenance and upkeep into a safe condition that can be maintained for several decades This paper describes the decontamination and decommissioning D D work performed on five of the nine reactors Reactor systems and structures including subgrade systems such as piping were removed An enclosure was built over the defueled reactor block The resulting structure is called the Safe Storage Enclosure and is intended to safely house the core for at least 75 years A permanent disposition for the facility will be determined at that time Numerous hazards have been encountered and safely handled during this work including the discovery of over a dozen irradiated fuel pins in one storage basin This paper discusses how this work was integrated into the cleanup program and then moved through the D D process The goal is to facilitate site cleanup by quickly removing imminent hazards while not compromising safety standards during a time of reduced budgets and intense emphasis on efficiency This paper demonstrates excellence in coordination of safety analysis and D D field work that will soon place the reactors in a safe storage condition for several decades Safety analysis and field programs practices and lessons learned will be discussed Efforts to convert B Reactor into a permanent museum will be briefly discussed Factors Relevant to the Recycling Or Reuse of Components Arising from the Decommissioning and Refurbishment of Nuclear Facilities International Atomic Energy Agency,1988
