

Butterfly or Moth?

Butterflies and moths look alike, but there are ways of telling them apart.

A butterfly's antenna has a blob at its end. The antenna of a moth is feathery. Both butterflies and moths have 2 pairs of wings, which they use to fly through the air. They have large eyes that allow them to see in colour. Butterflies and moths feed on the sugary nectar made by flowers.

Butterflies are usually more colourful than moths. Butterflies fly around during the day, while most moths fly at night.

At night, moths cannot use what they look like to find each other. Instead the male finds the female by her scent. Moths often shiver before they fly. The shivering helps to warm up their bodies.

Butterflies and Moths lay their eggs on plants. Their eggs hatch into caterpillars.

When a moth lands it spreads out its wings. Most butterflies rest with their wings pressed together. When butterflies and moths land they hold on tight using hooks on their feet.
