By Fire and Ice David A. Koplow, 1997 The Chemical Weapons Convention is a recently signed treaty that requires the dismantling and destruction of the massive stockpiles that many countries most notably the United States and Russia have built over the years However no simple or agreed upon means exist to accomplish this admirable goal of the removal of chemical weapons National security experts assert that the country and the world as a whole will be better off if chemical weapons are eliminated while environmental experts assert that there is no way to accomplish this ambitious plan while conforming to existing national and community health and safety standards Koplow examines the forced merger between the national security and the environmental policy makers recognizing the necessity but warning of potential and actual conflicts in missions Environmentalism and arms control are two crucial sectors of American and international public life that have long existed in segregated parallel universes Now these groups must FIRE AND ICE NARAYAN CHANGDER, 2024-05-27

Death by Fire and Ice

Brian O'Connor, 2022-10-15 Death by Fire and Ice tells the little known story of the sinking of the steamboat Lexington on Long Island Sound in January 1840 Built in 1835 by Cornelius Vanderbilt the Lexington left Manhattan bound for Stonington Connecticut at four o'clock in the afternoon on a bitterly cold day carrying an estimated one hundred forty seven passengers and crew and a cargo of among other things baled cotton After making her way up an ice encrusted East River and into Long Island Sound she caught fire off Eaton's Neck on Long Island's north shore at approximately seven o'clock The fire quickly ignited the cotton stowed on board With the crew unable to extinguish the fire the blaze burned through the ship's wheel and tiller ropes rendering the ship unmanageable Soon after the engine died and the blazing ship drifted aimlessly in the Sound away from shore with the prevailing wind and current As the night wore on the temperature plummeted reaching nineteen degrees below zero With no hope of rescue on the dark horizon the forlorn passengers and crew faced a dreadful decision remain on board and perish in the searing flames or jump overboard and succumb within minutes to the Sound's icy waters By three o'clock in the morning the grisly ordeal was over for all but one passenger and three members of the crew the only ones who survived The tragedy remains the worst maritime disaster in the history of Long Island Sound Within days the New York City Coroner convened an inquest to determine the cause of the disaster After two weeks of testimony reported daily in the New York City press the inquest jury concluded that the Lexington had been permitted to operate on the Sound at the imminent risk of the lives and property of its passengers and that had the crew acted appropriately the fire could have been extinguished and a large portion if not all of the passengers saved The public's reaction to the verdict was scathing the press charged that the members of the board of directors of the Transportation Company which had purchased the Lexington from Commodore Vanderbilt in 1839 were guilty of murder and should be indicted Calls were immediately made for Congress to enact legislation to improve passenger safety on steamboats This book explores the ongoing debate in Congress during the nineteenth century over its power to regulate steamboat safety and it examines the balance Congress struck between the need to insulate the nation's shipping industry from ruinous liability for lost cargo while at the same time greatly enhancing passenger safety on the nation's steamboats
