Work, training, and networking that lead to full-time employment

Wage Subsidies Create Jobs

Work First partners with employers to create new job opportunities. By paying up to 75% of a new hire's salary, companies can hire multiple employees instead of one, helping to get more people off public assistance and gaining skills in the workforce.

Full-Time Retention Rates

Individuals placed in temporary subsidized employment receive on-the-job training that results in valuable workplace skills, experience, and employer investment that often leads to full-time opportunities.

A Wage Subsidy Worker's Journey

Employers benefit from Wage Subsidy programs by gaining the financial flexibility to train and test candidates.

Work First is eager to replicate the success of the Wage Subsidy program in NYC and bring the model of getting adults off public assistance and into full-time jobs to other major metropolitan areas.
