Cattle Capitalism And Class Ilparakuyo Maasai Transformations:

Cattle, Capitalism, and Class Peter Rigby, 1992 Focusing on the Ilparakuyo Maasai of Kenya and Tanzania Peter Rigby discusses why third world development policies with regard to pastoral societies are inappropriate and likely to fail A political economy of development Rigby maintains must incorporate historical cultural linguistic and even aesthetic dimensions of the peoples involved Using ethnography and other research materials and basing his understanding on his years of living with the people he writes about the author illuminates the culture and explores the prospects for a distinct section of pastoral Maasai the Ilparakuyo In addition he attempts to develop a historical materialist theory of language in relation to a specific East African culture While rural development is a priority in many recently independent third world countries it is often not designed for the benefit of the producer Rigby analyzes the language and customs of the Maasai to chronicle the changes forces upon them by both colonial and post colonial governments and the complexity of their responses to these challenges The cultures languages and aspirations of such pastoral societies are often overlooked by development planners Rigby describes how government expectations should be based on an understanding and respect of such social conditions Author note Peter Rigby is Professor of Anthropology at Temple University

Our Gigantic Zoo Thomas M. Lekan, 2020 Our Gigantic Zoo tells the story of Bernhard Grzimek the most important European wildlife conservationist and his role in creating a permanent sanctuary for innocent animals in Serengeti National Park

African Images Peter Rigby, 2020-05-12 This controversial book is an impassioned African response to the racial stereotyping of African people and people of African descent by prominent white scholars It highlights how the media contributes to the growth of racist ideas particularly in reporting current events in Africa and demonstrates how some of America's most revered intellectuals cloak racist ideologies in ostensibly egalitarian discourses The author seeks to rewrite the image of race in order to show the damage racism can cause serious scholarship

Selling the Serengeti Benjamin Gardner, 2016-02-15 Situating safari tourism within the discourses and practices of development Selling the Serengeti examines the relationship between the Maasai people of northern Tanzania and the extraordinary influence of foreign owned ecotourism and big game hunting companies It contrasts two major approaches to community conservation international NGO and state sponsored conservation efforts on the one hand and the neoliberal private investment in tourism on the other and investigates their profound effect on the Maasai's culture and livelihood It further explores how these changing social and economic forces remake the terms through which state institutions and local people engage with foreign investors communities and their own territories And finally it highlights how the new tourism arrangements change the shape and meaning of the nation state and the village and in the process remake cultural belonging and citizenship Benjamin Gardner's experiences in Tanzania began during a study abroad trip in 1991 His stay led to a relationship with the nation and the Maasai people in Loliondo lasting almost twenty years it also marked the beginning of his analysis of and ethnographic research into social movements market

Farmers and the State in Colonial Kano Steven Pierce,2005 In Farmers and the State in Colonial Kano Steven Pierce examines issues surrounding the colonial state and the distribution of state power in northern Nigeria Here Pierce deconstructs the colonial state and offers a unique reading of land tenure that challenges earlier views of the role of indirect rule According to Pierce land tenure was the means the colonial government used to rule the local population and extract taxes from them but it was also a political logic with a fundamental flaw and a Western bias In Pierce s view colonial representations of land tenure claimed to reflect pre colonial systems of rule but instead fundamentally misrepresented farmers experience He maintains that this misrepresentation created a paradox at the core of the colonial state which persists into the present and helps to explain contemporary problems in African states In this sweeping and eloquent account of African history readers will find an extended genealogy of land law and taxation as well as rich material on the power of indigenous knowledge and the persistence of colonial systems of rule Steven T Pierce is Assistant Professor of History at Tulane University Journal of Religion in Africa ,1995 Working Paper ,2000 The Politics of Gender, Ethnicity and "development" Dorothy Louise Hodgson,1995
