Remains of Socialism Maya Nadkarni, 2020-07-15 In Remains of Socialism Maya Nadkarni investigates the changing fates of the socialist past in postsocialist Hungary She introduces the concept of remains both physical objects and cultural remainders to analyze all that Hungarians sought to leave behind after the end of state socialism Spanning more than two decades of postsocialist transformation Remains of Socialism follows Hungary from the optimism of the early years of transition to its recent right wing turn toward illiberal democracy Nadkarni analyzes remains that range from exiled statues of Lenin to the socialist era

Bambi soda and from discredited official histories to the scandalous secrets of the communist regime's informers. She deftly demonstrates that these remains were far more than simply the leftovers of an unwanted past. Ultimately the struggles to define remains of socialism and settle their fates would represent attempts to determine the future and to mourn futures that never materialized.

Hungarian Perspectives on the Western Canon László Bengi, Gábor Mezei, Ernő Kulcsár Szabó, 2017-05-11 In this collection Hungarian literature is read together with canonical works of the Western literary tradition. The book studies the distinction between major and minor literatures showing that such parallel readings may highlight previously unknown components of the literary tradition. The book does not hold traditional comparative methods based on verifiable mediations or transactions between national philologies and national literary narratives to be the exclusive standard of interpretation; readings can concentrate on common surfaces and textual events instead. This is what is meant by post-comparative perspectives: a term to indicate that the conditions of a comparative reading never precede the reading itself. On this basis the present volume points at several possibilities of how a common ground between texts can be created, especially because the chapters within it perform parallel readings in highly different ways.

History of the Literary Cultures of East-Central Europe: Types and stereotypes Marcel Cornis-Pope, John Neubauer, 2004. Types and stereotypes is the fourth and last volume of a path-breaking multinational literary history that incorporates innovative features relevant to the writing of literary history in general. Instead of offering a traditional chronological narrative of the period 1800-1989, the History of the Literary Cultures of East-Central Europe approaches the region's literatures from five complementary angles: focusing on literature's participation in and reaction to key political events; literary periods and genres; the literatures of cities and sub-regions; literary institutions and figures of representation. The main objective of the project is to challenge the self-enclosure of national literatures in traditional literary histories, to contextualize them in a regional perspective, and to recover individual works, writers, and minority literatures that national histories have marginalized or ignored. Types and stereotypes brings together articles that rethink the figures of National Poets, figurations of the Family, Women, Outlaws, and Others, as well as figures of Trauma and Mediation. As in the previous three volumes, the historical and imaginary figures discussed here constantly change and readjust to new political and social conditions. An Epilogue complements the basic history, focusing on the contradictory transformations of East-Central European literary cultures after 1989. This volume will be of interest to the region's literary historians, to students and teachers of comparative literature, to cultural historians, and to the general public interested in exploring the literatures of a rich and resourceful cultural region.
