New Approach To World Peace Haresh Makhijani,2020-05-01 A For the most part World Peace has been a subject matter of G7 Countries and typically the United Nation has been the key negotiator in resolving international conflicts The New Approach to World Peace identifies the two hurdles that human beings have to overcome to attain global peace so that every person can enjoy and move freely on this Earth The first hurdle is purely political that is far too many people live in countries where citizens are not allowed to think free because governments are too authoritarian as in China or like in Russia where Democracy has been high jacked or because of the flawed constitution as in India The second hurdle is that societies are so bound by their religion that free thinking or human development is NOT easy In both cases citizens have limitations in contributing towards World Peace The Elements of World Peace that is Republicanism and Neosecularism explained in this book answers both these issues The book also elaborates on how and why we should launch a campaign for World Peace B Elements of World Peace Constitutional Doctrine of Separation of Powers People are Free the Government have restrictions The government must make laws by representation only Citizens have powers to change the Government when representation fails Constitution must guarantee human rights including minority rights Supranational Body gives additional power to citizens of Member States to protect individual rights Society practices Secularism Library Journal Melvil Dewey, Richard Rogers Bowker, L.
